BRICKER WON'T SPLIT SURPLUS FOR DEFENSE

Governor Repeats Refusal To Call Special Session of Legislature.

CITIES IN NEW PLEA

Asks Funds For Bridge Guard Which Executive Calls Local Responsibility.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — Gov. John W. Bricker, who has refused to divide state money among financially-pressed cities so many times he has forgotten the number, again has refused to dip into the state's surplus.

Bricker today reiterated his stand that he would not call a special session of the legislature until there were "problems of great enough magnitude to justify a special session" and said that state funds could not be spent for civilian defense except in "pressing disaster or emergency."

"I do not know of any present problem that would justify a special session now," he told a committee of the Toledo city council. "A session at this time, in my opinion, would add confusion rather than clarify present problems."

Ohio cities and counties, hard-pressed for funds and seeking a special session to provide money for civilian defense, opened a new offensive on the Republican Bricker administration for apportionment of at least a part of the state's surplus among local subdivisions.

The governor refused the request of Lorain county officials for state financial aid in guarding bridges in that county against sabotage. He said that Lorain county officials apparently were "continuing in a political bickering campaign" and suggested that if they "rearranged" their finances they might be able to provide their own guards.

"Civilian defense and the guarding of bridges are local matters and should be financed locally barring any pressing disaster or emergency," Bricker said. "By writing letters down here you can not pass on your local responsibilities to someone else."

He said he understood a similar request from the Cuyahoga county defense council and a general request for state aid for civilian defense needs by the Ohio League of Women Voters were being made.

"I haven't received either of them yet," Bricker said. "But I

'Meanest Thief' Robs Children of Their Coats, Hats

Mansfield police had a new candidate for "the meanest man in town" today.

Their candidate was an unidentified man who stole the hats and coats of three Mansfield children yesterday afternoon as they played in front of their homes on West Sixth street.

James Breres, 344 West Sixth street, reported to police that a man had approached his daughter, Frances, 5, while she was playing with Bobby Strand, 4, of 280 West Sixth street and Eugene Buzinski, 4, of 276 West Sixth street while they played in front of the home of Frances' grandmother, Mrs. Helen Dandakis, 278 West Sixth street.

The children ran into the Dandakis home crying that "a man took our hats and coats." They told their parents that the man had pulled off their coats, jumped into a blue automobile and drove away.

Police questioned the parents of the children but could learn no further information about the case. A check-up is being made of all second-hand stores in an effort to trace the thief.

City's Army Day Parade Line Extended As Hundreds More Join Ranks of Marchers; Floats Being Arranged

Like the proverbial snowball, Mansfield's project for an Army day parade next Monday to salute the city's sons in service was growing in size and momentum today.

Capt. Glenn L. Bierly, parade chairman, reported at noon that the originally-scheduled line of march will be extended and other details revised because participation in the parade will be considerably larger than first was anticipated.

Present indications are that 2,500 persons or more will march in the parade, Bierly reported. To make arrangements for handling a group this size, the general parade committee which Bierly heads will meet tonight. The new line of march will be announced tomorrow.

Named today as grand marshal for the parade was Floyd F. Dent, Boy Scout executive. Marshals for the three individual divisions will be Clyde M. Myers, commander Alfred I. Harrington post, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Ralph A. Hughes, municipal court clerk, and J. F. Carrigan, plant defense chief at Westinghouse.

Carrigan's division will include the entire plant protection personnel at Westinghouse, numbering more than 500.

In addition to hundreds of marchers, the parade will include several school bands, the Westinghouse band, and a number of floats. One of these, which is being arranged by the Soldiers-Citizens committee, is being sponsored by the Manufacturers club. Another is sponsored by the women's group of the defense bond sale committee.

Paul M. Eliot, chairman of the defense bond campaign in the county, was making arrangements for participation in the parade by employes of firms which have adopted the voluntary payroll deduction plan for purchase of bonds.

To date, Eliot said, 55 firms have reported 100 per cent co-operation in the payroll

5 DIE AS ARMY BOMBER FALLS, STARTING BLAZE

150 Acres Burned Over After Explosion; 3 More Fliers Killed in Take-off.

(By International News Service)

WEST GREENWICH, R. I.—With a roar that shook the countryside for miles around, a light army bombing plane exploded over Hopkins Hill and crashed today causing the deaths of five army airmen—two officers and three enlisted men.

Blazing wreckage was scattered over an area of 200 yards, parts of the plane clinging to trees, and starting a woodland fire which burned over 150 acres before it was brought under control by firemen, led by Fire Chief John Potter.

Two bodies were removed from the main section of the wreckage and taken to the funeral home of Frank R. Gorton in Coventry.

Two truckloads of soldiers from Rhode Island army post were rushed to the scene and assisted state police and firemen.

The bomber of the V-25 or 18 class was seen by farmers as it passed over the Pawtuxet valley. Suddenly in a remote section of Rhode Island, on the Exeter-West Greenwich town line, near the Connecticut-Rhode Island border, the explosion occurred. It was heard even as far south as Wickford and Narragansett bay.

In the flash that shattered the plane, parts of the bomber were scattered over a wide area in the woodland section.

Army authorities said that the plane came from the Hillsgrove airfield, recently taken over by the army. It had gone 16 miles when apparently it suddenly de-

ASKS CITY TO BUY TREASURY CERTIFICATES

U. S. Requests Aid in Program To Raise $1,500,000,000 For War Effort.

Mansfield city government was asked today to purchase U. S. Treasury certificates of indebtedness for a six-month period as part of a governmental program to obtain $1,500,000,000 to aid the financing of the nation's war effort.

Mayor W J. Locke said that he had received a telegram from the treasury department stating that a billion and a half dollars worth of these certificates would be placed on sale Monday for "many state and local governmental units which have indicated the desire to invest current accumulation of funds in this type of security."

Locke said the certificates offered would be for only a six-month period and would pay one-half of one per cent interest. The mayor said that the city had sufficient funds on hand to purchase some of the certificates but that he believed the decision in the matter rested with city council.

The mayor said he was referring the communication to city council for its consideration. Although the telegram stated that purchases should be made Monday, if possible, and council is not scheduled to meet until Tuesday, Locke said he would not call any special session.

Paul L. Kelley, city auditor, estimated that the city could purchase about $50,000 worth of the certificates "without being pinched." The certificates could be purchased from the active funds, according to Kelley. Inactive

11 SENTENCED TO PRISON ON ENTERING PLEAS

Former OSR Guard, Disbarred Mansfield Attorney Sent To Ohio Pen.

Willis Harris, 46, former Mansfield reformatory guard, and Raymond J. Brown, 54, disbarred Mansfield attorney, were sentenced to one to 20 years in the Ohio penitentiary late yesterday by Common Pleas Judge C H. Huston who imposed prison terms on 11 of 18 persons brought before him on grand jury indictments.

Only one defendant—a colored girl—won probation. Three persons pleaded innocent and the cases of three others who pleaded guilty to indictments were continued for further investigation.

The 11 men who received penitentiary, reformatory, and workhouse sentences comprised the largest group to be sentenced in common pleas court here at one time in recent years.

Harris, who pleaded guilty to a charge of shooting James Wilson, 30, reformatory parolee, with intent to wound, was sentenced after a brief hearing during which he offered no defense.

"I suppose I went too far," was his only comment when Judge Huston asked him to explain why he shot Wilson in the abdomen, seriously injuring him. The shooting occurred early in February at Harris' farm home southeast of Mansfield. Wilson was employed on the farm.

Harris shot Wilson from his bed as the younger man was leaving the bedroom following an argument. At the time Harris was recovering from a broken back received in a farm accident several months ago. He was able to be in court yes-

British Raid France as Foe Sweeps Coast

Towns of South England Blasted When German Raiders Release Bombs by Moonlight; Heavy Damage Done To Paris Truck Factory.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—In the fiercest exchange of air blows in many months, RAF planes inflicted heavy damage on the Matford truck plant outside Paris, raided docks at Le Havre and carried out fighter sweeps over Nazi-held airfields last night while the Germans countered with smashing blows at English south coast points.

The air ministry said bomber pilots returning from the Matford raid reported they had carried out an effective bombardment of "this important objective"—one of the key French industrial plants in the air ministry's master plan for demolishing Nazi and Nazi-controlled war industries.

Only two British planes were lost, the ministry said.

The German communique identified their objectives as Dover and Portland. Coastal observers said the Nazi raiders dared the British balloon barrage by coming in at extremely low level, then climbing sharply after releasing their bombs.

The fury of the moonlit German assault, sudden and brief but of extraordinary intensity, suggested to some Britons that the invasion tables may have been turned. They speculated that the Nazis, fearful of a repetition of recent British hit-and-run invasions of occupied France, might have been trying to break up any new preparations on this side.

The attack on the Nazi-directed Matfork works at Poissy, on the Seine river, was the third by the RAF in a month's time and the second on successive nights.

Informed forces said Britain's big bombers "got in some good licks" on the works, reputed to supply Germany with 20 new trucks a day, but they emphasized that it was not on the big scale of other recent British air raids.

The resurgent air warfare echoed also over the Mediterranean, where the Germans staged a dawn-to-dawn attack on Malta starting April 1 and lost 14 planes certainly plus 13 others probably destroyed or damaged, a British communique announced.

The most concentrated anti-aircraft fire ever seen on the English south coast also distinguished the blows there.

Although the German planes were in unusual force, their bombs fell over a relatively broad area and a communique indicated that damages and casualties were slight except for "one place on the south coast and another one on the southeast coast" where "damage was caused and there were a number of casualties, some of which were fatal."

"It seemed like a spite raid," said one seasoned observer who

RETREAT: British Forced to Give Up Key Burma Front City

(By United Press)

NEW DELHI, India—British forces have retreated from Prome, key city on the west Burma front 100 miles south of the rich Yanangyuant oil fields, under pressure of a sudden and overwhelming Japanese offensive, a communique of the Burma command announced today.

It had been obvious that Prome was lost, and the main British forces had been withdrawn. A covering force was left to hold the town.

At dusk Wednesday, the Japanese attacked in force.

Japanese troops who had filtered through the jungle with the aid of treacherous Buremese natives moved on to the main road as if by signal. They and a powerful frontal force hit the thin British covering line from positions on high ground, just south of Prome, which their jungle forces had secured after moving up east of the road

Throughout the night, the British empire forces fought to delay the Japanese advance.

At dawn they began a slow, stubborn retreat and succeeded in withdrawing intact to a fresh covering position north of Prome.

The main British force, meantime, began concentrating in "new areas," the communique said, for a frontal defense against the enemy in what is to be a main defense line.

Dispatches from the front said the Japanese were not only attacking in superior strength on both the Prome front and the Toungoo front on the east, held

ALERT: Batan Troops Mop Up Japs, Prepare for New Assault

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Lieut. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright sent no report this morning on the progress of the battle of Batan. The latest advices from the front late yesterday had told how U. S.-Filipino forces had stopped strong enemy assaults.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—American front line troops stood alert today against a third Japanese Batan assault in two days, ready again to meet superior numbers and fire-power with determined counterattacks.

U. S. forces were reported officially to be mopping up Japanese units which broke through the main defense line in two heavy pocketed by an American counter-drive.

The war department said "a considerable number of Japanese units" were in the pocket, indicating that whole platoons, armed with grenade-throwers and machine-guns, faced the encircling American troops.

Each Japanese infantry platoon of 42 men has three rifle sections and a grenade-thrower section. The rifle sections each have seven riflemen and a light machine-gun. The grenade-thrower, or tekidanto, sections have three grenade dischargers capable of throwing powerful 50 mm. projectiles from 65 to 250 yards.

In addition, the Japanese riflemen themselves carry both hand grenades and "stick" grenades. The stick grenades are small iron pots of explosive on five-inch wooden handles.

The Japanese lob them for considerable distances. The stick grenades depend mainly on heavy charges of lyddite for their effect rather than on the fragmentation as in American and British types. Each grenade had two ounces of lyddite, giving it about half the

Healthful Meals, Vital In Wartime, to Be Stressed At Annual News Journal Cooking School Next Week

The importance of the American homemaker's job at any time—particularly war time—is to serve the right food to achieve the highest level of bouyant health.

That is the belief of Mrs. Myrtle Hickman, nationally known home economist, who will conduct The Mansfield News-Journal's four-day cooking school at the Ohio theater Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week. Valuable prizes will be awarded during the sessions.

Mrs. Hickman will relate proper cooking methods directly to health building in her lectures and demonstrations built upon the keynote, "Learn how to cook expertly now."

She will also stress balance rather than vitamins as she is convinced "it is more helpful to talk about a balanced meal based on all the needed food elements, minerals, vitamins, proteins and carbohydrates."

Balance in all the household arts will be emphasized by the food lecturer who will present a wealth of original ideas each day from her completely-equipped kitchen installed on the stage.

The cooking school starts at 9 a. m. each day and Mansfield homemakers are urged to bring their pencils and note books to jot down all the helpful suggestions in all-around homemaking presented by Mrs. Hickman.

New menus and foods will be discussed and prepared each day and the demonstration treats will be carried home daily by members of the audience.

Time each day will be devoted to questions so that Mansfield women may present their cooking and food problems to the lecturer and have them answered by an expert.

Wavell Joins India Conference

(By United Press)

NEW DELHI, India—Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, commander in chief in India and Burma, was brought into negotiations on Britain's offer of post-war dominion status to India today.

Maulana Abdul Kalam Azad, president of the Nationalist All-India Congress, announced that he and Jawaharlal Nehru, powerful left wing congress leader, would meet Wavell and Sir Stafford Cripps, British cabinet envoy, at a time and place to be arranged.

Wavell and Cripps conferred at noon for an hour.

Wavell will join in the general attempt to find a basis of agreement by which Indians may be conceded a share satisfactory to nationalists in India's defense.

Azad and Nehru arranged to meet Cripps late today to study the reaction of the British war cabinet to the congress memorandum on the British offer which Cripps received yesterday.

At Cripp's request publication of the memorandum was deferred.

The working committee of the All-India Congress adjourned until tomorrow after a brief meeting.

Well-informed quarters reported that Cripps had been given a free hand to negotiate an agreement within the limitations of his own discretion.

It was hoped that Wavell might be able to suggest a way in which Britain could give Indians the measure of control the nationalists seek over broad aspects of defense and leave him free at the same time to direct all strategic and tactical activities.

When he first made public the British offer he said it must be accepted or rejected as a whole. It was at once apparent that the nationalist choice would be rejection. Now it was apparent that before he left London, Cripps had been acquainted with the extent to which he could depart from the letter of the offer and that he was thus able to make concessions.

Reports Japs Massed At Singapore, Java

SYDNEY, Australia—(U.P.)—The newspaper Sun reported today that eight fully equipped Japanese divisions, numbering between 120,000 and 150,000 men, were believed to be massed in Java and at Singapore, awaiting orders for Japan's next big attack.

According to the Sun, the Japanese were believed to be using only two divisions in Burma and considerably less than one division in New Guinea.

Included in the Java and Singapore troops, the Sun said, were the crack emperor's guards shock troops and a large force of parachutists.

Report Japs Will Attack Australia

CHUNGKING—(Chinese Broadcast Recorded by (U.P.) at San Francisco)—Chinese press commentators said today that Japan is hastening preparations for a full-scale assault on Australia in the hope of inflicting a decisive defeat on the United States before American war production reaches its peak.

Despite increased activity in Burma, they said, Japan's immediate objective is Australia, without which her footing in the Pacific theater will remain insecure. Japan hopes to establish herself in Burma and India, the commentators said, largely by political means. But she can take Australia only by force, they pointed out.

A United Nations victory in the impending battle for Australia would alter the entire Pacific war and would upset Japan's strategic time table by depriving her of the initiative, the commentators said.

11 SENTENCED TO PRISON ON ENTERING PLEAS

terday with the assistance of an officer.

Brown, attorney in Mansfield for five years and one-time Republican candidate for councilman and prosecutor, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with forging the name of Roy Ohler, a client, to a $20 check last December.

Although the check was the only one mentioned in the indictment, Brown admitted he forged 90 checks for a total of more than $800 over a year's time. Ohler's name was on all of them.

Attorneys John C. O'Donnell and George Blecker pleaded for leniency for Brown, citing his record as a soldier who fought in France during the first World war and recalling the respect with which he was held by his associates.

In an eloquent plea, Attorney O'Donnell said Brown was driven to forging the checks by his small income in the law profession and a series of hardships during the years following the war.

Judge Huston commended Brown as "an energetic and courteous lawyer who was actively interested in young people's work," but added that he "knew well enough he was committing a crime."

Attorney Blecker, who said he was volunteering his plea in behalf of Brown, described the former attorney as "very honorable in his dealings with other lawyers."

Judge Huston told Brown he would not "stand in the way of your parole when your application comes up for hearing by the parole board."

Others who pleaded guilty and received penitentiary sentences were:

Alonzo Lindsay, 20, colored, one to 20 years for grand larceny; Leo Pitroff, 35, one to 20 years for auto theft; Francis Lane, 38, one to 20 years for auto theft; Benny Passafiume, 26, one to 20 years for auto theft; Leland B. Strome, 44, one to three years for issuing a check with insufficient funds; Charles Preston, 25, one to 20 years for auto theft.

Sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory after they pleaded guilty were: Robert Jackson, 20, colored, one to seven years for grand larceny, and John Hunter, 26, Moorehead, Ky., one to three years for abandonment.

James E. Grove, 37, of Akron, was sentenced to 90 days in the Columbus workhouse for carrying concealed weapons.

Thelma Davis, colored, was placed on probation for three years to David Lantz, probation officer, after she pleaded guilty to a grand larceny indictment.

Three cases were continued for further investigation. Involved in them were Clarence Burns, 27, indicted for forgery; Edward Kenney, 46, accused of cutting with intent to wound, and John W. Wilburn, 29, who pleaded guilty to a charge of forgery.

Innocent pleas were entered by James Cunningham, 27, colored, indicted on a charge of cutting with intent to wound; John Jones, jr., 27, colored, accused of non-support, and Rufus Dawson, colored, held on an indictment for cutting with intent to wound. Judge Huston said their cases would be heard next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

BOY'S CURIOSITY WRECKS TRAIN

Passengers Escape After Lads Put Stones On Rails.

BAYONNE, N. J. — (U.P.) — Two boys, 11 and 12, said today that they put two stones on the railroad tracks to see if the Reading railroad's Pennsylvania express would crush them. Officials said it was a miracle that 150 passengers aboard weren't killed or injured.

The locomotive, roaring along at 60 miles an hour, crushed the stones. Its small front wheels jumped the tracks and rolled on the cross ties.

When the locomotive went through a switch, the pony wheels went farther from the rail and began to tear up the rails. Two baggage cars tumbled on their sides. None of the passengers, in the diner and two coaches, was injured.

deduction plan, and 13 others have reported 90 per cent or more of their employes were buying the bonds through the plan.

Eliot urged employes of all firms which have adopted the payroll deduction plan to join in the parade, and to display banners indicating the extent of their participation. He announced that defense bond posters suitable for use on automobiles which will be driven in the parade can be obtained from the defense bond office, room 1008 Farmers Bank building.

More than 125 carrier boys of the News-Journal—all of whom sell defense stamps to their customers when they make their regular weekly collections, will march in a body in the parade.

One leading group in the parade will be all young men from this area now in uniform who are home on furlough, and another will be the fathers and mothers of boys in any of Uncle Sam's armed forces.

Another large group will be the city's civilian defense organization. Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, civilian defense charman, today requested all persons who have registered for any phase of civilian defense activity to report for participation in the parade.

Adding to the military atmosphere, a formation of nine planes piloted by members of the Civil Air Patrol will fly over the downtown district while the parade is in progress unless the field at Municipal airport is soggy and does not permit take-offs.

Bierly urged that stores, industrial plants, and individuals display flags Monday to mark the occasion.

Members of the committee arranging the parade, in addition to Bierly, are Capt. A. L. Allen, representing the selective service boards and parents of boys in service; R. M. James and Clyde M. ST. MARYS—(INS)—A theater lobby was converted into an inoculation station today with physicians and nurses donating their services in vaccinating the public against typhoid fever. Serum was furnished by the state health department which found "dangerous evidence of contamination" in the city water supply.

BICYCLES 'FROZEN' AS NEW WPB RULING PUTS BAN ON PURCHASES

The many Mansfielders who have been thinking about buying new bicycles found today they're too late—for all stocks of new bicycles for adults were frozen at one minute before midnight last night in a new ban issued by the war production board.

A rationing system will be set up soon to give defense workers first call, WPB explained.

The bicycle order applied to every bicycle with a frame measurement of more than 19 inches from the center of the crank to the head of the saddle staff post which has never been used by an ultimate consumer. It included so-called "victory" models.

The ban on sales, a war production board spokesman said, applies "even if a bicycle was ordered and paid for prior to the issuance of the order."

"The order was issued because of the terrific rate at which bicycles have been going to people who don't need them, with too few going to people like defense workers who have to have them now, or soon will need them," explained M. D. Moore, chief of the WPB bicycle section.

Meanwhile, automobile dealers and the public in general were pondering a speech in which a price administration official implied at Cleveland that many rationing boards had been too strict as to eligible new car buyers.

Simultaneously, the government official announced OPA would place price ceilings on used cars within a week or two, but no rationing of secondhand machines is planned.

Cyrus McCormick III, chief of OPA's automobile and truck section, yesterday told a conference of more than 1,000 dealers, salesmen, rationing board members and others that the government expected the full quotas of new cars to be sold but that in most cases this had not been done.

Although McCormick did not order rationing boards to liberalize their standards, he cited several instances where he thought new cars could have been granted.

"The basic thought behind automobile rationing is to distribute the non-pool stock of cars in an orderly manner to the preferred classifications of purchasers within approximately a year," he said.

"There have not been enough applications filed, and it is the duty of the dealers to create in the public mind that transportation for war workers must continue.

"It is not a crime to own a new automobile. It is a crime for a person who needs an automobile in war work not to have one."

U. S. Navy Has One of Finest Dental Clinics In Nation

(By International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA — The Philadelphia navy yard now boasts one of the finest dental clinics in the country.

With emphasis on "oomph," rather than "ow!" the walls of the new extraction room are painted a delicate, nerve-soothing robbin's egg blue.

Each of the 12 dental chairs is in a separate sound-proof private office. Partitions are non-existent, and the dispensary's central waiting room, which is air-conditioned, looks like a hotel lobby with pastel-colored walls.

A staff of 15 dental officers handle about 300 patients a day, according to Capt. Paul G. White, commanding officer of the dental unit. Before the war only three officers were needed to care for the navy yard personnel's dental worries.

White said the dental officers average 200 fillings and 150 extractions a month each.

Pride of the dispensary, however, is the new laboratory for working a special chrome alloy which has largely replaced gold and silver for various types of repair plates.

The only laboratory of its kind in the navy, it is equipped with a pre-heating casting furnace that reaches a temperature of 2,200 degrees and a centrifugal casting machine. All types of bone splints, as well as dentures, could be turned out from this laboratory, it was pointed out.

London Certain Japs Will Attack Russia

LONDON—(U.P.)—Great Britain is convinced that Japan will attack Russia this spring at the same time Germany hurls "the most appalling offensive in history" against Russia in the west, diplomatic quarters reported today.

Some quarters believe the Germans will attack the British in Libya coincidentally in a drive for Suez.

Growing belief that Japan would attack Russia was strengthened by conviction that so long as Russia remains unbeaten and a constant threat, Germany can never extricate the great bulk of its army for either defensive or offensive operations elsewhere.

This would mean that Germany would have to look forward to the time when Great Britain could invade the continent to form a real second front.

It was admitted here that this time was not near. Diplomatic informants said that if for no other reason the present strain on allied shipping was too great to permit an attempt to land large forces on the continent.

Moscow Claims Nazis Lose 20,000 More

22,000 Germans were killed on the Leningrad and Kalinin fronts, northwest Moscow, during the past ten days of bitter fighting, a Soviet official communique reported early today.

As the grim, bloody struggle carried on, the weather was said to be gradually turning warmer all along the far-flung battle lines, from Leningrad to the Black Sea.

Enumerating the huge enemy losses, the Red army high command declared that 10,000 Germans were killed at Kalinin, while 12,000 were slain around Leningrad during the period from March 21 to April 1.

Three hundred more Nazi troops were "annihilated" in one village and 200 others killed by concentrated Russian fire in another, as the Red army forces drove the Germans out of both sectors, a supplementary communique said this morning.

In a third area, the Soviet forces captured another village after "fierce street fighting," the announcement added.

Townsend Speaker

New developments in the campaign to make the Townsend plan a law will be discussed by Paul Chase, shown above, at 7:30 p. m. next Wednesday in Radio City hall, 64½ North Walnut street. The meeting will be one of 250 planned for the middlewest to inform Townsend followers of the progress of the movement headed by Dr. Francis E. Townsend.

Kelley said that although the interest obtained by purchasing the certificates would be "negligible" that such a purchase would be "a patriotic gesture."

can assure you that my answer to them also will be 'no'."

The increasing number of requests that the state divert its approximately $20,000,000 surplus to local defense needs, the governor said, appears to be "a part of an effort to discredit this administration."

Lorain county officials told Bricker they had received warnings of planned sabotage and that they were unable to pay a sufficient number of guards to patrol vital bridges.

The Toledo group sought a special session to consider legislation suspending civil liability during blackouts and air raids but Bricker said he could see "no need for setting aside any laws relating to civil liability."

Sees No Need For State Aid Here

Mayor W. J. Locke said that he had not heard of any concerted movement by municipalities to obtain state funds for civilian defense and that he did not contemplate making an appeal for Mansfield.

"At present, we are guarding only the city's water supply and distribution system," said the mayor, "and I feel that the waterworks department has enough funds to handle this well enough. The waterworks, just as private utilities, supports itself."

Mayor Locke said that council had not appropriated any money as yet for the guarding of city property.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, APRIL 3, 1942.

Good Friday In a Somber World

AS THE SOLEMNITY of Good Friday again makes its impress on this and other communities in America, and elsewhere in the world where its influence is felt and its significance understood, the darkness that marked the tragic occurrences of that distant time which this holy day commemorates is once more being visited upon mankind.

Whatever may have been the hopes and aspirations that peace-loving peoples have carried through the centuries, this Year of Our Lord, 1942, brings no more than a repetition of scenes of warfare, slaughter and devastation such as have been enacted ever since the start of life on this planet.

Always there has been a conflict between what is known as "good" and what is termed "evil," in individuals as well as in the large groups which constitute nations.

Always there have been proponents of the doctrine that "might makes right" and each generation has developed leadership in aggression designed to seize property and destroy freedom of weaker nations or unprotected people.

Except for ingenuity in perfecting instruments of destruction, the present world-encircling war is not unlike many that have gone before and the same bestial barbarity is recognized in its perpetrators and their followers.

The slow progress of civilization from savagery has been marked by certain well-defined trends of thinking which recognize a spiritual phase of human existence and seek to raise the level of mankind above that of other animals that inhabit the earth.

It may sometimes seem, in considering isolated cases, that this effort is destined to fail, and that some animals that have been given human form are really lower than beasts of the jungle.

But a broader outlook, and a fair estimate of accomplishments within recent centuries, presents a brighter long-range picture of the future of mankind upon the earth.

And this Good Friday is a fitting occasion to give thought to the essential part that religion has played, and will continue to play, in human progress—that it is only as spiritual values take dominance over animal instincts that worthy accomplishments become possible and eventual world peace attainable.

Valuable Property Neglected

WHEN an eight-inch snow fell over night early this week it was a common experience on Mansfield streets next day to see valuable snow-covered automobiles that had been left outdoors through the night with as little attention as might be given a worthless piece of junk.

Any one of these represented not only considerable money investment but also met a need for private transportation in a way that may not again be available for a long time when present automobiles are worn out.

The habit of leaving cars outside, in all kinds of weather, is one that has grown from confidence that another one can be bought at any time it is wanted, and that a car will stand three or four years of neglect and hard usage—with never a thought that the "old bus" can be made to serve eight or ten years, if given the right sort of attention.

Just now, however, an automobile in usable condition, with safe tires, means much more than its actual money worth, and deserves treatment as a precious possession rather than as a readily replaceable commodity.

Choosing and Preparing Food

THIS YEAR, possibly to a greater extent than within a quarter century, the proper preparation of food—from the standpoints of health, nourishment and economy—is engaging and holding attention of American housewives, and young women who, among other attainments, aspire to the enviable recognition of being "good cooks."

The large part that selection and preparation of food plays in maintaining and restoring health merits more than ordinary consideration at a time when the number of physicians serving a community is reduced by military requirements and when physical fitness for civilian tasks is highly important.

The four-day cooking school to be held in Mansfield next week, under sponsorship of The News-Journal, will have a timely interest for thousands of women in this city and vicinity who will thus be given opportunity to acquaint themselves with tested and practical methods of choosing and preparing food for well balanced, nutritive and appetizing meals.

The time: Next Tuesday, through Friday, at 9 a. m. The place: Ohio theater. Scheduling next week's appointments to allow time for attendance at cooking school will be well worthwhile.

Cashing 'Worthless' Checks

ABOUT every so often, year after year, the same old item pops up. "So-and-so (business man) reported to police that worthless check was cashed at his store."

Just how people got the idea in the first place that a check was "worth" anything is not entirely clear.

A check is merely a piece of paper, usually with the name of a bank printed on it, a date, name and amount filled in, and a signature at the bottom.

It is one of the sort of things that anyone can get hold of and write on. It has no value, in itself, and only attains value through the known reliability of the person who presents it.

Banks do not cash checks for unknown or unidentified persons. Business men would do well to adopt the same practice.

Training Chinese Airmen

AS CHINESE become trained and equipped for modern warfare their aid to the Allies will become increasingly practical and effective.

The first group of Chinese air pilots is just completing training at an Arizona field. They had 100 hours in the air before coming to this country. Now they will be succeeded by a second group.

One thing may be depended on. The time and money that the training of these pilots cost will be well spent. The Chinese make good fliers and unweariable fighters.

Careful study of the rubber situation makes it quite clear that if everybody had known what nobody knew there would have been no shortage.

MacArthur Prefers Offensive War

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

GEN. DOUGLAS MacARTHUR Batan's and Corregidor's defender in the Philippines and now commander of the United Nations' land, sea and air forces in the Pacific war area, of course is recognized as one of history's most brilliant soldiers.

However, the utility of his actual fighting leadership wasn't the only reason for his assignment to his present post "somewhere in Australia."

His all-around personality is spoken of in Washington as a tremendous asset in the stimulation of boundless enthusiasm and confidence in the rank and file of his officers and men.

He's got dash; a theatrical quality. It wouldn't be sufficient if he hadn't martial ability, too, but he has.

He's defensively super-competent, but an offensive campaign is what he was made to order for. A first-rate chance for his genius to assert itself was lacking while he remained pretty effectively marooned, with the Japs outnumbering him ten to one, on southern Luzon, though even there he took a frequent telling jab into the enemy's front. Lobse in the open, it's accepted as a foregone conclusion that his raiding will begin scoring against the Axis before hostilities are many days older.

Outnumbered, But—

He's outnumbered yet. Still, a larger proportion of Australia's military strength is said to be enrolled and in training than is the case in any other area on earth.

He'll have Dutch help also.

From America it appears that he needs equipment more than man power, but he'll get some of that likewise.

And the anti-Jap Filipinos will continue to be useful, if he can keep them armed.

Finally, not only are the Australians, the Dutch and the Filipinos all rarin' to fight, but Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese are rising anti-Japanese neck, with no loss of time, in what dispatches describe as the edge of Burma's "Shan states."

Parenthetically "shan" is a Chinese word meaning a "mountain chain."

We hear of Shantung and Shansi provinces in northern China. "Tung" means east. "Si" means west. Accordingly Shantung is east of a certain "shan," or mountain range and Shansi is west of it. And Burma's "shan states" (the "S" in "shan" isn't entitled to be capitalized) are its mountain states.

We might as well learn a little Chinese as a by-product of the war.

Strategists generally agree that General MacArthur's problem would be immensely simplified for him if we had had the forethought to build a railroad across Canada, from our northern border to Alaska, before World War No. 2 began. The Canadians were quite willing to grant us a right-of-way, but we postponed the job too long.

Had it been attended to at the time it originally was suggested, we could be air-raiding Japanese cities into heaps of ashes today, from the Aleutians. What it would do to the Japs' production of war supplies doesn't require much emphasizing.

By Water Is Slow.

It's true, we still can get equipment to an Alaskan base by water or by plane, but it's slower work that it would be to rush it up northward, in sufficient volume, by rail.

Meantime it is taken for granted that General MacArthur will overcome his handicaps, but it's obvious that he has them to overcome.

Man About Manhattan

Changed Man

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Private Mel Adams, that Jeb Stuart of the mechanized cavalry, writes from Ft. Riley, Kansas. . . . I used to see him kicking around the Broadway clubs, black-headed, alert, bright. . . . An ever-present grin always lighted his countenance. . . . I don't think I ever saw him without that grin.

He'd come in and say, "Let's go get that coffee." . . . and then he'd tell me something about Toscanini, or Tommy Dorsey. . . . Once he took me down to Camden and gave me an assembly line view of RCA Manufacturing company. . . . We saw thousands of records made, and thousands of radios. . . . They're making defense equipment now.

IT SEEMS strange to think of the metamorphosis that has changed the Broadway nightowls into hard-hitting buckeroos of the U. S. Army. . . . "I qualified as marksman on the Garland rifle," he writes. . . . Before he left Times Square, Mel Adams qualified on hit tunes, and band leaders.

"This," he says, "is the nation's only horse and mechanized cavalry training center. Recruits come here and are whipped through basic training (but tough, too) for eight weeks before they're shipped out to join regular regiments and divisions. . . . All the cavalrymen here wear boots and campaign hats peculiar to the cavalry during this World War II.

"Incidentally, I ran into a few odds and ends with a Noo York twist that might interest you. We had a sort of Manhattan reunion out here on the Kansas plains, while that bluff Kansas wind was whipping up the dust around the Cavalry Replacement Training Center. . . . 1st Lt. Andrew White, special service officer who used to sing with Fred Waring, now entertains embryo cavalrymen with his strong baritone. . . . Sgt. Arthur Cowan, who used to sing on the Roxy stage; Private Gerald Preshaw who used to sing with the radio vocal group 'Six Hits and a Miss.' . . . Private Eddie Duke Herzog, who used to arrange for such bands as Jimmy Dorsey. Jack Teagarden and Claude Thornhill. . . . Al Lombardo, who used to act with Orson Welles. . . . Seymour Magenheim, who played the accordion, guitar and piano at the Stork Club. . . . Private John M. Hamill, who used to play drums with Jerry Wald's band. . . . They're all here now, in the cavalry.

MEL ADAMS may be whistling Boots and Saddles now, but when he was on Broadway he was beating time to swing and whistling Tschaikowsky. . . . "I saw Toscanini conduct Tschaikowsky's 4th," he'd say. "He was padding around in his slippers and yelling orders. . . . He knew what he wanted and he got it. Wait'll you hear it. . . . Wait till you get your album."

And so instead of mowing down pins in Broadway's bowling alleys he's mowing down targets with a Garand rifle. . . . Instead of hopping about New York in taxicabs he's hopping about the Kansas plains in armored vehicles. . . .

As somebody succinctly put it, "The war . . . it does things to you."

Casey Advises Labor Leaders to Learn From Australia's Lessons

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—A short time ago Australian Minister Casey received a cable from Melbourne which read:

"Please arrange meetings for me with heads of AFL and CIO. Want no lahledah entertainment while I'm in Washington."

The instruction came from Casey's boss, Australian Minister of External Affairs Herbert V. Evatt.

Casey, extremely popular with Washington's social upper crust, had to reply that he did not know any American labor leaders, could not arrange the introductions. Casey has since resigned as Australian minister to enter the British cabinet, but his chief, External Minister Evatt, is now in Washington and is the most invigorating visitor this country has seen since Winston Churchill.

Reason Minister Evatt wanted to meet U. S. labor leaders was because he is a member of one of the few labor governments in the world, and because he is convinced that American labor could profit by some of the mistakes and lessons of Australian labor.

"In Australia," says Evatt, "we haven't had one strike. Labor has patched up all its differences for the duration. We have the same factions that you do—like your AFL and CIO—but there's no quarrel between them now. The last thing they want is to row while the country's in danger."

Labor's Responsibility.

MINISTER EVATT also thinks that labor has to assume more responsibility along with its gains.

"For years," he says, "we had conservative governments in Australia. And now that the government's been turned over to labor, we've got to make a go of it.

"And your labor people here have got to make a go of it too. Otherwise they'll lose all they gained under Roosevelt."

Minister Evatt has not been an active labor man all his life. For many years he was a justice of the supreme court of Australia, comparable to our supreme court.

More recently, he stepped down from the bench to take the most important post in the cabinet, equivalent to Australian foreign minister—except that Australia, being part of the British Empire, is not supposed to have any foreign affairs.

External Minister Evatt is in Washington to speed war supplies to his beleaguered nation and to work with the new Council of the Pacific, to which he is a delegate.

No Brains.

JACK KELLY, one-time famed athlete who is U. S. director of physical fitness, has been tangling with Senator Harry Byrd over the question of improving the endurance of Americans. Although Kelly has spent only $16,000 in the eight months of his program, Byrd, a loud economy clamorer, is "agin it."

Following a speech by Kelly defending his program, Byrd told newsmen the Philadelphian favored making people "dumber and stronger." Reporters asked Kelly what he had to say about that.

"Just tell Senator Byrd," was the reply, "that he need not be alarmed. I only want to make him stronger."

Nelson Mystery.

FRIENDS of war production chief Donald Nelson are baffled. They can't understand why he isn't ridding his staff of dollar-a-year men whose incompetence and profit-minded obstructionism are hampering him and bringing down on his head a storm of public criticism.

Personally sincere, conscientious and able, Nelson, in the three months he has been WPB boss, has accomplished much in bringing order and drive into the production program. He has licked many tough problems and shown himself an executive of courage and imagination—except in one vital respect. That is in failing to surround himself with assistants of top caliber and punch.

It was expected when Nelson took charge that he would purge the deadwood and worse that had made such tragic shambles of OPM. Instead, he took over the OPM high command practically intact. Further, of the few changes he did make, several were worse than the officials they replaced.

For example: Philip Reed, glad-handing General Electric mogul, had been anything but a shining success in several key OPM posts. It was an open secret that one of his chiefs was trying to find a way to ease him out. Insiders took it for granted that Reed would be one of the first dropped by Nelson. Instead, to everyone's astonishment, the dawdling dollar-a-yearer was made head of the key Bureau of Industry Branches.

However, nothing was said publicly about this situation at the time in the belief that it was only temporary and that as soon as Nelson had disposed of more pressing matters he would clean up his staff.

Note:—Among the nearly 300 dollar-a-year men on Nelson's staff is Ralph Wolf, an official of Standard Oil of New Jersey, who is assistant director of the synthetic rubber section of WPB.

Persecution Complex.

THREE months have gone by and Nelson has yet given no sign of doing anything about this.

Further, not only has he had ample time to act but the door was opened wide for him to do so by the explosive resignation of Robert Guthrie and two of his assistants because of the obstructionism of profit-minded dollar-a-year men to all-out war effort. Guthrie and his aides presented Nelson with a made-to-order opportunity to wield a long-overdue ax. But Nelson doesn't see it that way at all.

To intimates he has complained bitterly about the courageous walkout on the ground that it was a personal affront to him and an "act of disloyalty."

Nelson's apparent inability to get rid of fuddling assistants is a trait he shares in common with the president. One of Roosevelt's chief weaknesses is his incapacity to dismiss aides of proven incompetence.

Note:—Friends, worried about Nelson's frayed nerves, are urging him to take a vacation. He has been under enormous pressure for months.

Merry-Go-Round.

WAYNE COY, brainy young White House assistant, is slated for a promotion. The ex-Indiana newsman will be made assistant budget director. Coy will also continue as head of the Office of Emergency Management. . . . Among those being considered for high posts in the Man Power agency soon to be set up are Murray Latimer, chairman of the Railroad Retirement Board, and Thomas Murray, prominent New York industrial engineer, close friend, but no relative, of CIO president Phil Murray. . . . Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold's testimony before the Truman committee on Standard Oil's secret Nazi trade relations was a grim statement. But one line drew a laugh. Sardonically Arnold remarked: "We may well be grateful to Standard Oil for putting all its arrangements in writing. That was very helpful to us in getting all the facts and we are most thankful to the company."

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The capital in wartime:

I never thought I would see the day when your government and mine would be doing its business in trailers, but it's here and the first agency to set up shop in the highway cabooses is, of all things, the recently formed national housing agency.

When the NHA was set up, it took over the old Tuckerman mansion at Sixteenth and I streets, not far from the White House. As the NHA really got under way, it overflowed into the stables, where the stenographic force was located. This isn't the first instance where a government agency has been housed in a stable. The weather bureau has had a part of its force installed in stables for years.

But even the stables wouldn't hold the NHA and in desperation they borrowed (try and get 'em back) two trailers from the Farm Security administration.

In each of the two trailers are six clerks. Their desks fill the space of former bunks. They file their records in the trailer linen and china closets. Their supplies are kept in the ice box and pan shelves under the sink.

The clerks who work there say: "It's fun"; "It's real cozy"; "It's okay by me"; "The boys on Batan would probably call it Rockefeller Center, why should I kick"; and "This is a lot greener pasture than the stables or that old mansion's basement."

ANOTHER ancient landmark to house a Washington war effort is historic Dumbarton house in Georgetown. The National Society of the Colonial Dames of America, whose pride it has been for some years, has just turned it over to the district chapter of the Red Cross for the duration.

Dumbarton is thought to be the oldest mansion in Georgetown and that makes it about as ancient as the country has to offer. It was built around 1750 by a Scotsman, named George Beall. At one time, it was owned by Charles Carroll, one of the signers of the Declaration. And Dolly Madison took refuge there in 1812 after the British had sacked Washington and burned the White House.

The District Red Cross will have its headquarters there as long as the war lasts and write one more chapter into the history of one of the nation's most famous old edifices.

ONLY members of the younger generation ever thought of the juke box as anything but a nuisance until the WPB came along and announced that the entire industry (about 30 companies) would convert to war work May 1.

It turned out that one of the big jukes contains enough brass to make 750 cartridge cases; enough steel to make five light machine guns; and that in 125 there would be enough aluminum to make a fighter plane.

Timely Editorial

Old Newspaper Ceases.

Announcement that the Journal is ceasing publication comes as a shock to the people of Kansas City. For eighty-eight years the Journal was published without interruption, and eighty-eight years is a long time in the history of any mid-western city. It was founded in 1854, the year after the incorporation of this city as the City of Kansas.

In the last generation the Journal fell on increasingly hard times. The services of newspapers to their readers vastly increased in that era and the expense of publication correspondingly advanced. In this time of mounting costs the Journal wasn't able to make the grade.

The fate of the Journal unhappily is a symptom of the difficulties that increasingly confront all newspapers in the emergency of rising costs and lower revenues that necessarily attend the war.—Kansas City Star.

A Farmer's Diary

Absent Wife

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

AT THE VILLAGE, I met a friend, whose wife was away for a check-up at a city hospital. The old man was lonely. "Yes, she's still away," he said. "Been gone two weeks now. It seems like quite a while."

An old acquaintance of his, standing by a light pole, overheard our conversation. He walked closer and put his hand on the tall old neighbor's shoulder. "If I was her, knowin' you as I do," he said, without the slightest hint of a smile, "I'd never come back."

"That's right," the other agreed, with a quick glance at me. "I wouldn't blame 'er a bit." He spat heavily. "Well, jes' so they let me keep my dog, I'll get along somehow."

"I've allus knowed you was heartless, but I never knew you'd take it out on a woman. She showed good sense to leave you for a spell—the wonder is she's stuck these forty odd years. You allus had one good person in the house, before she left."

"That's right—her patience got wore thin. I hope she'll have a fine time and come back feelin' better'n when she left. She's been the fault of most o' the good things we've enjoyed up on that farm of mine. That's why I came to town today—'twas pretty lonesome."

"If it gets too bad, come down and we'll share our crusts with you. I mean that . . . if you're stayin' 'till afternoon come over for dinner. The old lady'll be tickled to see you."

"Huh!" growled the other. "Don't you let her meet any strangers at all—that she'd feel that way to me? Pears like you don't treat your wife so good, neither."

As the other sauntered down the street, my farmer friend confided—"That Jim's the soberest joker I've ever seen—but his rough side's all outside. He'd always like to do you a kindness before you could do him one. He beats you to the draw. Unless I want to eat with him today, I'll have to beat it away from Main street before noon."

"I guess you'll be going down to see her," I suggested.

"Yes, tomorrow mornin'. She said for me not to come too often and save gas and tires—but you know how women are. She didn't mean it. I got an urgent note in yesterday's mail, and I thought I'd come in today and buy a new necktie."

LIBRARY HAS AUTOBIOGRAPHY, 'CROSS CREEK'

Book on New List Describes Neighbors, Community Where Author Lives.

Two entertaining new books, both of them autobiographical, are in Mansfield Public library's new collection this week.

"Cross Creek," by Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, describes the author's community and neighbors and gives an intimate portrait of the writer herself.

Ilka Chase, movie actress, radio commentator and star of innumerable Broadway plays, writes informally and entertainingly of her professional life in "Past Imperfect."

OUR ENEMY JAPAN by Wilfred Fleisher is a first rate analysis of Japan's ability to wage a winning war—by a man who has lived in Japan for many years. It is "must" reading for anyone who would have a real understanding of the strengths and weaknesses of our enemy. Mr. Fleisher is also the author of "Volcanic Isle," another and earlier book on Japan.

NEW HAMPSHIRE BORNS A TOWN by Marion Nicholl is a rich, full book, bristling with Americana—the story of an isolated New Hampshire town, from 1753 to 1853. It will be welcomed by all those interested in the early attempts to formulate ideas of popular government in this country.

HOBSON CALLED TURN ON JAPAN 35 YEARS AGO

U. S. Naval Hero of War With Spain Predicted Jap Threat In 1907.

(By United Press)

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—"Japan has gone further toward making plans for war than any white nation has ever gone. She teaches 'hate the foreigner' and 'prepare for war.' In her preparation for war, she is locating on our Pacific coast and is filling Hawaii with soldiers."

These might have been the words of a patriot last year, a few days before Pearl Harbor and Wake and Guam. But they were not. They were spoken in Memphis on the night of Oct. 14, 1907.

The speaker was Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson, naval hero of the Spanish-American war and later congressman from Alabama.

Hobson, the man who blew up the collier Merrimac to blockade Cervera's fleet in Santiago harbor, told his Memphis audience that "one of the strongest reasons for enlarging the navy is the fact that this country is threatened by Japan."

"Japan has had the war habit for more than 800 years; it is with her a question of heredity," he said.

Hobson called for a two-ocean navy." He said the Japanese were enlarging their navy "for no other purpose than to grapple with the white race for supremacy of the world."

Hobson urged spending $50,000,000 a year to enlarge the navy, saying that the United States should start with $100,000,000 the first year.

His figures may not seem excessive now, but they were enough to shock the public of 1907.

Hobsen was branded as a "public nuisance" by the press. Memphis newspapers reported the audience "listened with great interest, and some of Capt. Hobson's words were heartily applauded."

But in less than a year—July 16, 1908—the Independent, a weekly magazine, printed the following under the heading "A Public Nuisance:"

"We refer—we more than refer we point to, we inculpate and arraign Richmond Pearson Hobson as a public nuisance, who fails to be a menace to public peace solely because the sensible American public, startled at first by his positive assurance of what he knows, will not take him seriously . . . He is a public nuisance and a national disgrace . . . ridiculous as the bekist of martial heroes."

Favors Plan for City's Purchase Of Defense Bonds

Municipal funds raised by the city's 414 parking meters may soon be used to purchase $10,000 worth of U. S. defense bonds as the start of a new city program to invest surplus funds to help the nation's war effort.

Councilman Fred Miller said, today that he was having legislation prepared urging the purchase of $10,000 worth of bonds from the meter funds and would present it to the city council at its meeting Tuesday night at the municipal building.

Miller said that he hoped council would approve the plan and would set up some sort of a plan to purchase additional bonds whenever possible.

Miller stated that the purchase of the bonds with municipal funds would "not only be a patriotic move but a profitable one at the same time." He pointed out that much of the city's funds is deposited in banks where it draws no interest and said that bonds would pay about three per cent interest.

"The bonds would be negotiable and could be sold if needed for any emergency," said Miller, "and in the meantime, it would give the government additional money with which to fight the war."

DEFENDANT WINS IN DAMAGE SUIT

John Schag, Sacred Heart seminary, Shelby, was the winner today in a $5,351 damage suit in which he was the defendant.

A jury in Richland county common pleas court signed a directed verdict for Schag after hearing evidence in the case which was filed as the result of a traffic accident June 21, 1941, at Bowman and Harker streets.

William Earl Liggett of near Butler sought the damages for injuries he received in the mishap. He accused Schag, driver of the second car, of negligence.

Attorneys John C. O'Donnell and H. M. Rust represented Liggett. Defense counsel was the firm of Long, Anderson and Green, Shelby.

COUNTY SHEEP CLAIMS DOWN

Animal Losses Totalling $172 Authorized For Payment By Commissioners.

Richland county dogs caused less damage in sheep flocks last month although spring usually brings an increase in the number of animals killed or maimed by stray dogs.

County commissioners today had approved sheep claims totaling $172, a considerable decrease from the claims approved in February.

Commissioners withheld approval of a claim filed by one farmer pending further investigation of the type of sheep listed in the claim. They said the amount sought by the owner was unusually large considering the number of sheep killed on his farm.

Farmers whose claims for damages were approved by the commissioners and the amount the sheep owners will receive are:

Wade Forbes, $22; H. Fellows, $42; C. N. Sloan, $54 and George Wolever, $54.

Can Good Girl Be Popular?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"I belong to a family of what some people might call 'old-fashioned folks.' My mother and dad have been married over twenty years and they're still in love with each other. There never have been any divorces in our family—when we're married, it's for keeps. Mother has brought us up to be clean-minded and taught us that, when we marry, we shouldn't go to our new homes as hardened and experienced women.

"When I went to college, about two years ago, I was amazed at the point of view of some of my classmates. Some had had a great deal of experience and they all agreed that a girl couldn't be innocent and also popular. This was a terrible shock to me. I'd like to know what you think about this.

As a rule, when a girl asks me whether it's possible for a girl to be both modern and innocent, she sends a stamped and self-addressed envelope because she's had some bitter personal experience which must be kept confidential. More than likely she's come from a line of women who have been "good" in the old-fashioned sense and she is genuinely puzzled to know that "good" girls aren't always popular.

Now comes the above letter from a girl who wants an answer through my column. Everyone knows there's a deplorable lack of morals in the world at present. Whatever it was that made this, nothing is gained by closing your eyes and saying it doesn't exist.

These classmates of yours, Claire, make me think of patients suffering from jaundice; they see yellow and the whole world looks yellow to them. My dear child, such beliefs are not universal, any more than smallpox, conflagrations or floods are universal. Choose your friends from homes such as the one in which you have grown up.

Some day you'll marry, and the man you marry must be of decent principles and ideals who will give you a home like your mother's and father's. That sort of man doesn't want a wife who has led an irregular life. Even if he marries you, knowing about your past experiences, the spectre would always be there. Human nature being what it is, the chances are that he would never quite trust you.

"A short life and merry one" may be the motto for girls whose life roots are as shallow as the weeds that spring up in a public highway, but not for a girl who comes from a home such as yours.

Waiters Turn To Defense Work as War Reduces Tips

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)— Some of the nation's best waiters are leaving their jobs because, according to their union leaders, "even the nickel-droppers are just tipping their hats now."

A survey made among 1,500 waiters in the Hotel and Restaurant Workers and Bartenders' Union, AFL, shows that tips have dropped 50 per cent and many waiters are turning to defense work for a living.

Harry Ames, chairman of the union's joint board, said:

"People seem ot forget waiters also have taxes to pay. Waiters who get from $9 to $10 a week formerly received $25 to $30 a week in tips. Now they are lucky to make $18 or $20 a week including tips.

"The man who formerly left 50 cents for two persons now leaves a quarter and the 25-cent tipper has dwindled to a dime. The former nickel-dropper just tips his hat."

COLONY'S FATE REAL MYSTERY

Settlers Who Once Lived on Wyoming Plains Have Disappeared.

(By United Press)

SHOSHONE, Wyo. — The lost colony of Owl Creek—a group of white settlers who lived on the Wyoming plains around 1770, before the American Declaration of Independence, and then disappeared—today is still one of Wyoming's greatest mysteries.

When they came, who they were and where they went are all matters for speculation. And the greatest mystery of all is where they came from in those days when Americans scarcely ventured past the Allegheny Mountains and wagon trains were a thing of the future.

The late Ed Cusack, who died several years ago in Greybull, settled on Owl Creek nearly 60 years ago and served as deputy sheriff. During that time he wrote a series of local historical narratives.

In one of the articles he described his findings about the "lost colony."

"Across Owl Creek from where I built my house, I found the remains of a log cabin that had rotted so completely that it was by the rarest accident I stumbled onto it," Cusack wrote. "There were a few pieces of kitchen utensils scattered around and of the pattern of a hundred years ago." (He was writing before 1880.)

"Still further down on what was later the Dan Dee ranch, I found the site of a large camp ground," he wrote. "Numerous pieces of old style kitchen ware were scattered around there, showing that white people had been in the vicinity.

"Under the cedar ridge, between Thermopolis and Owl Creek, I found where juniper trees had been piled together to form a barricade and the trees that had been cut showed evidence of white men's work.

"I also believe the stone breastworks on the top of Roundtop Butte were the work of white men who were beseiged there by some much stronger party. But their fate will perhaps never be known."

Since Cusack's time several searching parties have discovered further evidence of the settlement but none of the clues answered the questions of origin, identity or the fate of Wyoming's "lost colony."

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Oh!" I gasped. "What was that?"

My hand was at my throat in an involuntary gesture of panic at the terrible, pain-filled, choking sound in the closed room behind me.

I tried to pull myself together, but the suddenly contorted face and savage eyes of old Professor Diswell made me clutch at my throat, in order to choke back the frightened shriek which otherwise would have torn from it.

I fully expected to feel his hands at my throat in the next instant, for if ever I saw blind, murderous rage in a man's face—and I have witnessed it on several occasions—I saw it then in the eyes and features of the old professor who had been Jack Bickett's best friend.

The deterioration of his mind must have gone even further than was evidenced by his loss of memory and the other odd changes I had noticed in him. Occasional mad rages must be his, I decided, and took one hand away from my throat and put it against my lips, prepared to blow the whistle.

But the next instant I dropped both hands to my lap again and drew a deep breath of relief—and chagrin — at my own weakness. For so quickly did the savage look fade from his eyes, with an equally rapid smoothing out of his facial muscles, that I wondered bewilderedly, as I met his kindly indulgent smile, if my terrifying vision of him had been solely a figment of my imagination.

"Don't be frightened," he said. "It is only my old dog. He is terribly spoiled and when he is shut in for punishment, as he has been for the last hour, he makes the most unearthly noises. I don't wonder you were upset."

He paused and looked at me with a genial smile, which I suddenly found more terrifying than his anger.

That terrifying, choking noise never had been made by a dog. It was the frantic effort of speech of —I groped for knowledge and suddenly got it—of a man with a gag in his mouth!

What was going on in this secluded country house? Whatever it was, I knew better than to betray any curiosity concerning it.

"I truly am ashamed of myself," I told him, "especially because we once had a dog who used to do the same thing."

But I had succeeded in quieting any suspicion he might have had of my reaction to the unearthly noise. Even as I spoke, however, the eerie, choking sound came again, and he strode toward the door behind me.

"If you'll excuse me," he said, "I'll go in there and settle that hound. He's transcending all bounds."

"Please don't punish him on my accounts," I pleaded.

"I won't be hard on him," he promised. Then he went into the other room, leaving me stunned and breathless, with a real panic this time instead of an imaginary one.

For as he passed me the sunlight came through the window and shone full upon his face. And my knowledged of make-up, gleaned from Harry Underwood, master of the craft, had flashed the terrifying truth upon me.

The man who had been talking to me was not Professor Walter Scott Diswell, but some one cleverly masquerading in the old man's place!

When the Young Are Parasites

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

All too many youths employed and living at home are parasites on their selfsacrificing parents. To such selfish children, the wages earned merely mean more money to spend on good times and luxuries: not for self-improvement and the family's welfare.

Nearly all those employed youths who can, will buy a jalopy and, unless forced to provide liability insurance, won't do so. In consequence, many a parent must pay heavy damages incurred in accidents by these adolescent children. Besides, the parents may let themselves be forced to pay for the car's upkeep, even when the son or daughter is earning wages and paying no board. Why should not every employed child living with his parents pay them board?

Drive Cars to School.

Before the days when cars were rationed, thousands of high school youths who had no need at all for a car were given one. Thousands more drove the family car, the parents using the automobile when the youngster didn't care to.

Now that new cars and tires are rationed, an amazing number of youths are still driving cars to school, and to other places.

Accustomed to have his own wishes gratified, regardless of the rights and welfare of his parents, the youth naturally goes on in self-gratification during these rationing days. It is safe to say that the average teen-age youth will be the last of his family to bear the burdens of the economic sacrifices enforced by the defense program.

Parents to Blame.

This severe indictment does not, of course, apply to all youths. Some, fortunately, have not been over-indulged at home and are self-denying, co-operative and grateful sons and daughters. Even a few youths for whom their parents sacrificed far too much turn out to be anything but selfish. Anyway, we should not condemn selfish youths. They are only what their parents made them.

My fellow parents of younger children, let me entreat you: 1. Not to make too many sacrifices for your children. Don't make yourselves your children's slaves. 2. Let them share the burdens and hardships of your family and not grow into parasites. 3. Though you have an abundance of this world's goods, don't let your child have nearly all he wants nor anything which will harm him. 4. Regardless of your income, let your employed son or daughter living at home pay board and be responsible for his or her own mending and laundry.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

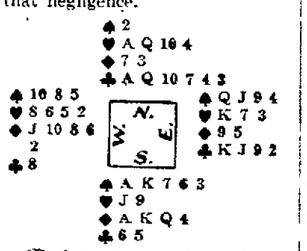
"The Authority on Authorities"

THE FIRST REQUIREMENT

PLEASE DON'T ever get so good in the playing of hands, that you find it no longer necessary to count up your number of winning tricks in a No Trump contract or apparent losing tricks in a suit contract. Doing that is the first requirement to sound play. If you skip it, nothing else you can do will make up in the long run for that negligence.



(Dealer. South. North - South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♦	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 NT

After South was set in this contract, he called it hard luck and considered that he had played soundly because, after winning the lead of diamond J with the Q, he had gone to work on the six-card club suit. When his partner later said he could have made the contract by going after hearts instead of clubs, he asked: "Who would ever try a four-card suit before a six-card suit?

For answer, North specified: "Anybody who counted up his tricks."

Had South, upon winning his first trick, done this, he would have seen three certainties in diamonds, two in spades and one in clubs, a total of six, so that three in hearts would make the nine he needed, and he could not help getting three there even if the finesse lost to the K. His bungling play, however, was in this order—the diamond J to the Q, club 6 to the 10 and J, diamond 5 to the A, club 5 to the A, when West discarded, then a change of plan and an effort to win the heart finesse. After the spade A, he led the heart J, which won, but East won the heart Q with the K, and returned the spade Q to the K. Now the spade 7 gave East tricks with the 9 and J, and the club K was the setting trick.

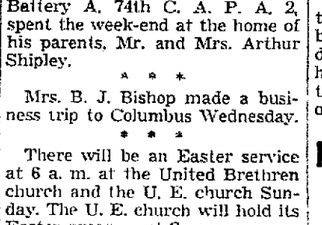
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

If North and South are using the Blackwood convention, what bid should South make on this deal after his partner has jumped his 1-Spade to 3-Spades? Why is that bid better than some other one?

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, April 4.

An unusually lively and eventful day is read from the predominant astral configurations, with much of a business, professional and literary nature engaging the attention. It should be a splendid aspect for writers, publishers, advertising and press agents or others in promotional enterprises. But these as well as other activities may develop strange or surprising angles, possibly with romance, adventure or the unpredictable materializing. This may incite nervous tension or other physical as well as psychological effects.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year in which the romantic or adventurous and strange may upset all steady and systematic calculations. With calmness, restraint and poise under such challenging circumstances, there may be surprising benefits and thrilling experiences.

A child born on this day should be financially favored, with many promises of success and independence, but this may be negated by either ill health, nervous tension or ungoverned romantic impulses.

PROBE SALE OF GASOLINE TO ITALY AIRLINE

Senators Learn Standard Oil Supplied Petroleum During 1941.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The senate defense investigating committee inquired today into circumstances under which Standard Oil interests in Brazil supplied petroleum early in 1941 to an Italian airline operating between South America and Africa.

Saying that a "surprise" witness would be called in connection with the inquiry, Chairman Truman (D-Mo) declined to identify him.

The committee's interest in the matter, he said, was aroused by records of Standard Oil company (New Jersey) which Thurman Arnold, anti-trust chief, turned over to the committee last week.

Company executive committee minutes said that Standard had been advised Secretary of State Hull would refuse an export license for shipment of aviation gasoline from the United States to Brazil for use of the line but that "since the shipments emanated from outside the United States, Mr. Hull said he could only express the hope that it would not be necessary for such shipments to originate from any other place in the western hemisphere.

"While there is no contract covering this business," the minutes said, "the customer has been a regular customer. In view of the complications surrounding this matter, committee was of the opinion that the quotation should be given F. O. B. Aruba . . ."

(Aruba is the oil refining center off the northern coast of Venezuela. It is a Dutch colony.)

W. S. Farish, Standard president, testified that "no delivery was made except in conformity with the policy of the department" and that deliveries to the airline were discussed with the state department and with the American embassy at Rio De Janeiro.

SEALS STUDIED BY SCIENTISTS

Biologists Launch Project to Determine Habits of Animals.

(By United Press)

SEATTLE, Wash.—Before the watchful eyes of scientists from the United States Fish and Wildlife Service and the University of Washington, a herd of seven seals are the main actors in a bit of biological research.

The "guinea pigs" were brought to Seattle's Woodland Park zoo from the rocky coast of St. Paul island in the Pribiloff group, home of thousands of fur seals off the Alaskan coast. The purpose of the experiment—the first of its kind in history—is to determine the eating habits of the seals.

The investigators would like to know the amounts and kind of fish the seals consume in an effort to find out what effect seal appetites have on Pacific coast fisheries.

As a result, scholarly biologists from both the service and the university show up at meal times to take notes on what kind of fish the seals turn up their whiskered noses at and what delicacies they relish.

Another thing they would like to discover is just how much fish a seal can gulp down in the course of a day—something which science so far has never determined.

While this research is under way, the war in the Pacific has undone the work of another experiment.

Last year the federal biologists started a vast project. They tagged 10,000 Pribiloff seals in an attempt to study their migrations during the months they are absent from their birthplaces.

This work went for nothing because scientists cannot roam the sea in boats looking for tagged seals while a war is being fought in the Pacific.

Asks High School Jitterbugs for Potato Bug War

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)— The jitterbugs from Ohio high schools are needed for chasing potato bugs this summer.

Wade Hammond, state director of the U. S. employment service, said today that his office is planning a survey of potential agricultural labor among high school undergraduates.

"These young people will be most useful in picking fruit," Hammond said. "It looks like pickers will be paid eight cents a hamper for tomatoes this harvest season and a boy with a strong back ought to be able to go out and earn seven or eight dollars a day.

E. S. Benedict of the employment service asked delegates to the Ohio College association meeting yesterday to persuade college students not planning to attend classes this summer to seek farm work.

WAR REACHES GRAZING AREA

District Works Out Plan For Aiding Fliers In Event of Forced Landings.

(By United Press)

SALT LAKE CITY—War has touched the widespread San Rafael grazing district in eastern Utah.

The grazing district is perfecting an organization to assist the Army in rescue and salvage operations in cases of forced landings and air crashes which might occur in the vast, thinly-populated grazing area.

In case of an accident, key men stationed throughout the San Rafael district would notify Army authorities of plane accidents and then be prepared to recruit aid speedily.

Here is the eight-fold plan of the organization:

1—Supply maps of roads, ranches and points where trucks, saddle horses or pack horses would be available.

2—Provide guide service.

3—Assist in searching for lost planes.

4—Establish radio communication at the site of the wreck.

5—Assist in securing transportation to the site of the wreck.

6—Guard wrecks until federal officials arrived to remove mail, documents, instruments, etc.

7—Assist and render first aid.

8—Assist in salvage operations.

Tabor College Accepts Only Students With Low Standings

(By International News Service)

TABOR, Ia. — Students with high scholastic standings, class valedictorians and potential Phi Beta Kappas, have been receiving to much attention from colleges, in the opinion of Dr. Robert Enlow O'Brien, preacher, educator, politician and business man who currently is president of Tabor college.

So Dr. O'Brien has geared the curriculum of Tabor to the needs of students in the bottom one-fourth of their classes scholastically.

At the present time, Tabor college, located in a southwest Iowa town of the same name, will accept as students only those boys who finished high school in the lowest 25 per cent of their class.

This amazing entrance requirement in an educational world in which great universities are competing for high school honor students was the result of Dr. O'Brien's long study of college problems, he explained. A former president of Morningside college at Sioux City, Ia., and a former Iowa secretary of state, he said he had always wanted to run a college for boys who seldom get invitations to college registration days.

When the president of Tabor college resigned, and Dr. O'Brien got his chance, the college faced its second closing in 80 years.

Some of the trustees asked Dr. O'Brien to accept the presidency. He agreed to do so, providing he could reorganize the school to conform to his ideas and could find trustees and faculty members sympathetic to these ideas.

Tabor college trustees gave Dr. O'Brien the "go-ahead" signal and he reorganized the school. He notified all former students not to re-register. He announced that enrollment would be open only to students in the lowest one-fourth scholastically, and he engaged a faculty of four men and two women.

About a dozen students enrolled. The number was later cut to eight by the draft and defense industries, but Dr. O'Brien hopes to add some 26 students each semester until the maximum of 200, set by new by-laws of the college, is reached.

Courses offered at the college include Spanish, German, English composition, mathematics of the statistical and accounting varieties, in addition to the traditional liberal arts studies. All students must master typewriting and shorthand.

The college has just one course, and that is designed to fit a young man to go into business or industry. The school's program includes bringing students into contact with business men so they will get to know what these men are like and learn to talk their language.

Tabor college will have no intercollegiate athletics, but every boy is required to master some sport that he can use throughout life, such as hunting, fishing, bowling or billiards.

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — Ghengis Khan came howling out of Mongolia at the head of hordes of horsemen to subdue much of Asia and Europe from the China Sea to the Danube.

He used almost nothing but cavalry. He fed his shaggy mounts largely off the country by grazing. The principal diet of his savage troops was mare's milk and butter made from it.

Gen. Johnson.

This was the most marvelous conquest in the history or warfare for these and several other reasons. But these were highly important.

They meant that his advance was delayed by no cumbersome supply trains. Different columns of his armies appeared as if by magic before astonished enemies sometimes after single marches of 50 to 75 miles. It was the first and one of the greatest of blitzkriegs in human history.

A very similar thing happened in the Moslem eruptions out of Arabia. The gaunt horsemen of the descendants of Mahomet came out of the deserts in clouds of galloping cavalry, ululating "Allah Il Allah."

They were inspired by an unreasoning bloody faith. They continued to conquer until there was little left which they wanted.

Here too, their diet was light—largely dried fruit and trusses of forages which they carried on their mounts or on pack animals At first, at any rate, they too were not encumbered with baggage and what they had was packed on horses and camels.

It is hard to over-estimate this kind of military advantage. It doubles speed It frees for combatant work great masses of men who otherwise would be tied down to the service of supply.

These examples are given to illustrate a point too often overlooked today. Our soldiers fighting from 5,000 to 11,000 miles from base are the best fed, best clothed and best equipped troops in the world.

This is as it should be from the point of view of our great resources, but it absorbs vast quantities of shipping—of which we do not have 1.3 of our requirements for distant overseas campaigns in force.

The Japs, on the other hand, have never been accustomed to such comforts of field service. Their scant diet is based on fish, rice and various modern synthetic or highly condensed foods. Their supply trains are only a fraction of the weight of ours.

This not only frees more members of a division for fighting, but it enables individual soldiers to carry into battle more of their ammunition which is of smaller calibre than ours and hence lighter, or it leaves each man less weighted with equipment for jungle and mountain fighting.

Add to this the shorter distance to their emergency or permanent bases, plus their command of the air, and you have the answer to a seemingly puzzling question that is frequently asked and seldom answered.

"How can this impoverished nation of so few natural resources carry on its wars over such wide areas with such obvious economy of cost and shipping?"

All this leads up to the remarkable possibilities open to science in our various nutrition councils. I have talked to men who are specializing in this fascinating field and a more hopeful and enthusiastic outlook, I have yet to find. I remember long ago hearing:

"A weed is a plant the economic value of which has not yet been discovered"

Well, their job is to find these economic values and they are doing that for America, England, unoccupied France and Canada.

Final reports have not been rendered to these governments, but the claim is made that the scant available food supply of unoccupied France, for example, can be doubled. I cannot yet vouch for any of these statements except by hearsay.

But, if half of what is claimed is true, the supply of armies "living off the country" is going to be much easier and the specter of starvation that now threatens in many countries is going soon to get some new foods to hide its bones

Three Soldiers Killed In Gun Battle

DEMAND BOOST IN SYNTHETIC RUBBER OUTPUT

Congressmen Favor Farish Proposal to Use Cheap Butyl Product.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Demands were made in congress today for expansion of the government synthetic rubber program so that 30,000,000 American automobile owners won't be forced to abandon their cars for lack of tires.

The proposal, advanced by W. S. Farish, president of Standard Oil of New Jersey, gained headway in the senate defense committee, as members said abandonment of the automobile would force a tragic change in American life.

Farish declared that living standards would be lowered and habits of the nation changed if tires are not provided. He declared that there are ample materials to provide for making tires.

"By all means we should expand our synthetic tire production so that civilians can get tires," said Sen. Herring (D., Iowa). "It is just as important as the war effort—it is, in fact, a part of the war effort.

Farish said that the government rubber production calls for making tires primarily of buna rubber, a patent imported from Germany. But he said, immense quantities of butyl rubber can be produced much cheaper. Tires can be made which will run at least 10,000 miles at speeds of 35 to 40 miles an hour, and the process may be improved.

He proposed that the government program be expanded to make the butyl rubber tires for civilians, while using the stockpile of natural rubber and the best synthetics for heavy army and navy wear.

All information given the defense committee thus far has been that the synthetic program won't be ample to meet defense needs without use of natural rubber until 1944 or 1945, and that there is no chance of civilians getting tires during the war.

As a result of Farish's proposal, however, Herring and other committee members will urge a big expansion of the rubber program so that individuals won't have to abandon their cars.

Uncle Sam will get another $20 worth of metal scrap for his war effort all because the city decided to construct a storm sewer on Chilton avenue. City Engineer W. C. Statler said today that city workers had recovered $20 worth of junk from the ditches being dug for the Chilton avenue sewer. Statler said that the junk had probably been thrown in many years ago to fill a small ravine. The scrap metal will be sold to a junkyard and workers will refill the excavation with just plain dirt.

WHITE TROOPS, NEGROES CLASH AT FORT DIX

Exchange of Shots Follows Argument Over Use of Pay Telephone.

(By International News Service)

FORT DIX, N. J.—A twenty minute gun battle between Negro and white troops, originating over an argument about the use of a pay telephone, cost the lives of three soldiers, it was announced today. Five other soldiers, all Negroes, were wounded in the fray.

The shooting started shortly after 9 p. m., last night outside a recreation hall where white and Negro troops stood in line to use a pay telephone.

Private Manie W. Strouth, a member of the military police, stepped between a Negro and a white soldier who appeared to be on the verge of blows over whose turn it was to use the phone.

Authorities said the Negro lunged for Strouth's gun and ripped the M.P.'s holster but that Strouth kept possession of the weapon.

The Negro then dashed across the street to the Negro barracks, which houses 5,000 of the 25,000 troops stationed at the cantonment. Strouth fired a shot into the air in an effort to halt the fleeing soldier.

A moment later, Strouth was greeted by a fusillade of shots which came from the direction of the Negro barracks. Strouth fell dead with bullets in his chest, legs, abdomen and other parts of his body. The fusillade also fatally wounded two Negroes, Corporal W. E. Hall and Private Isaac W. Brown.

A white military police detachment called into the battle were also greeted by bullets from the Negro barracks. A volley of shots from the police detachment wounded five Negroes and brought an end to the hostilities.

The injured were John L. Robinson, who was taking a shower when hit, Corporal Hammond E. Millotte, Private Tinkley Reed, Private I. V. Martin, and Private Evans Webber.

Col. Herbert E. Forest, post executive officer, has started an investigation.

KILLED IN ROW ON HOME GUARD

Major Slain, Two Wounded In 'Social-Military' Dispute at Santa Barbara.

(By International News Service)

SANTA BARBARA, Cal.—A fatal gun battle between two of its "social-military" leaders, said by police to have climaxed a bitter argument over who should head the Santa Barbara home guard, rocked this swank community today.

Major William H. Wenstrom, USA, retired, was killed and another retired army major, Buell H. Hammett, 42, was wounded seriously. Major Wenstrom's society-matron wife was shot in the head and is in a hospital in a critical condition.

Police said gunfire between the two former army officers put an end to a bitter argument over which of them should head the Santa Barbara home guard.

Blasting away at each other with service revolvers, the men startled residents in an exclusive suburb. When neighbors reached the scene of battle, Major Wenstrom lay dead, a bullet through his heart, and Major Hammett was in agony, blood from thigh wounds reddening the lawn of his victim's home.

Mrs. Wenstrom was wandering delriously about the scene, with bullets lodged in her head, police said.

The shooting climaxed a months-long feud over how the home guard at California's "Gold Coast" community should be run.

The victim, 45, was born in Cleveland Ironically, a technical book he had written was to be published today.

'SPONSOR'S NIGHT PARTY TO OPEN EXHIBIT OF DOLL HOUSE

Plans are being rapidly completed for the exhibit here of Colleen Moore's Doll House, valued at half-a-million dollars, and which is being brought here under the auspices of Earl McVey Post of the American Legion during the week of April 13

It rears 14 feet in the air from the summit of a rugged precipice and has a frontage and depth each measuring nine feet. Filled with priceless objects it will be constantly guarded during its stay here by volunteers from McVey post.

Exhibition of the Doll's House will be made in the R. B. Gardner show rooms, 116 Park avenue west, and proceeds will be divided between the Red Cross and the Citizens'-Soldiers' committee for its work in sponsoring fitting farewell parties for the men entering the service.

Mansfield Share Of 167 Recapped Tires Determined

Mansfield's share of the 167 recapped tires allotted to Richland county for April is 16 recaps for passenger cars and 82 for trucks, James Bailey, county rationing co-ordinator and chairman of the Mansfield rationing board, announced today.

Breakdown of the county quota was worked out by Bailey and the county rationing advisory board, and allocations established for the seven boards in the county.

The individual board quotas, listed in this order—passenger car tires, passenger car tubes, truck tires, truck tubes, passenger car recaps, and truck recaps, are as follows:

Barrage Balloon Comes Down After Wild Aerial Trip

PITTSBURGH — (UP) — A test pilot and two helpers came from Akron, to the mountains of Huntingdon county, Pa., today to take home an army barrage balloon which broke from its moorings yesterday and scudded off, dangling 1,000 feet of snapping steel cable.

After the cable had broken two high-tension power lines near Vandergrift, Pa., the balloon come down in the mountains.

Reports of the runaway balloon had come from various sections all yesterday afternoon.

The balloon went off toward the southeast, and it appeared that it had traveled 350 miles in that direction over an irregular course, although the straight-line distance between Akron and Huntingdon county is some 225 miles.

Goodyear officials said it was equipped with a safety valve, which allowed helium to escape automatically when the balloon reached 5,000 or 6,000 feet. The valve, or contraction of the helium because of the cold night air, caused the balloon to come down, they believed.

PROBE $300,000 FIRE AT AKRON

Investigators Study Blaze That Destroyed War Plant.

AKRON — (INS) — Investigators were probing the cause of a $300,000 fire today which destroyed a plant engaged in war work, seriously damaged another, and menaced a South Akron industrial area as high winds whipped a roaring fire into almost uncontrollable dimensions.

Ten fire companies under Acting Chief Frank Vernotzy played 14 lines of water on the blaze, which was believed to have started in the blacksmith forge of the Century Heating and Ventillating company and then spread rapidly to an adjoining building leased by the Gorman Engineering Corp.

Vernotzy estimated that the Century plant sustained damage amounting to almost $250,000 while the Gorman plant, which makes shell castings, suffered $50,000 damage.

April 27—Registration for war service of all men from 45 to 65.

INVALIDS CLUB WORKS TOWARD SELF-SUPPORT

California Home Is One of World's Most Unique Organizations.

(By United Press)

BERKELEY, Cal. — More than 2,400 physically handicapped persons throughout the nation now look toward this city for guidance in their efforts to become self-supporting and useful members of society.

It is the headquarters for one of the most unique organizations in the world, Wheelchair Club, Inc., a non-profit corporation.

Purpose of the club, as set forth in its articles of incorporation, is to provide employment and opportunities for employment for the physically handicapped who can and want to work, to aid the families of crippled children, and to provide a long-range program of compensation for the hopelessly crippled.

Organized in April, 1940, under the leadership of C. B. Darrell, a successful automotive engineer and publicist, although severely crippled by arthritis; the club already has completed plans to open an automotive polish manufacturing plant here in which some 50 physically handicapped persons will find employment.

Vice president of the club is Len Sellner, who is paralyzed from his lungs down, yet has driven his specially constructed automobile hundreds of thousands of miles without an accident.

Sellner is the inventor of the tennis ball button and employs 150 physically handicapped persons in his manufacturing plant. He has bought his own home, put his sister through business college and supports his mother.

Sellner claims to have installed one of the first steering wheel gear-shifts in his automobile, which is equipped with a small crane to lift him from his wheelchair to the driver's seat and then hoists the chair into a rear compartment.

Before becoming afflicted, Darrell was assistant to the president of one of the largest wholesale and retail automobile corporations in the country, holding many of his own patents on automobile safety devices.

The attack of arthritis, which he suffered in 1928, failed to cripple his initiative and imagination. Since then he has built up a large automotive business of his own and, even after becoming confined to his bed, he promoted the largest independent banana business in the industry.

He is a radio publicist of considerable note, having handled the John Garner campaign here.

Pupils Stage Egg Hunt at Closing Easter Assembly

An Easter assembly program and party featured by an egg hunt climaxed the morning activities at Country Day school today before pupils were dismissed at noon for the 10-day spring vacation.

Selections presented by the children included a story on the Easter bunny by Betty Brown; piano solos by Susan and Sally Stoodt; recitations by Courtney Bourns, Steve Henkel, Neil Roller and Marilyn Graham, and a tap dance by Georgiann McClelland.

An interesting trip through the Mansfield-Leland hotel was taken by the pupils this week under the supervision of the manager, J. Reynolds Hodgson. The pupils were acquainted with all phases of hotel operation and were treated to refreshments by the management.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Books for boys and girls concerning South America are included in the new collection at the Mansfield Public Library's children's department. One tells the true story of a South American hero and another relates the everyday experiences of a family living in Brazil.

HE WOULDN'T BE KING; the story of Simon Bolivar, by N. B. Baker—When Bolivar was a young boy in Venezuela General Washington was his hero. He played soldier games and understood military tactics at an early age. He became a member of the queen's White Guard at sixteen and soon after became a leader among those who wished to make their country a democracy. For years he remained a military leader but when the democracy threatened to fail Bolivar still refused to become its monarch. He believed in the essential truth of democratic government.

TWO CHILDREN OF BRAZIL, by Rose Brown — Joa and Tatu with their brothers and sisters lived on a large coffee plantation. Sometimes they could go to the jungle nearby to visit Tio Jery who knew how to do magic healing with herbs. There were also parties and carnivals and interesting trips which made every day busy.

HOME ON LEAVE

WILLARD—Ralph Brownell of the U. S. Navy, the first Willard boy to return home after active service is at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Brownell until April 8.

THEATERS

Unusual Drama.

"King's Row," film version of Henry Bellamann's widely-read novel, opens Saturday at the Ohio with a brilliant cast including Robert Cummings, Ann Sheridan, Betty Fields and Maria Ouspenskaya. Its background laid in the seething undercurrent of small town life just before the turn of the century the story deals with a group of people struggling to find happiness against the opposition of circumstances and misunderstanding. Cummings has the role of "Parris Mitchell," the gently-reared grandson of a foreign noblewoman and Betty Field is cast as "Cassandra," his childhood sweetheart. Ann Sheridan appears as "Randy," the girl from the wrong side of the tracks and Ronald Reagan has the part of the embittered "Hugh Drake."

Walt Disney's full-length circus, "Dumbo," the story of a lovable little elephant with ears like wings, brings an array of new Disney characters to the Madison screen Saturday. Timothy Mouse, another new character, plays Dumbo's side-kick and benefactor. Voices heard in the picture belong to Edward Brophy, Herman Bing and Cliff Edwards although that belonging to "Dumbo" is never heard. "Call Out the Marines," with Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe again on the trail of blondes is co-featured.

The picture has a spectacular setting and the cast includes Ruth Warwick and Akim Tamiroff. "Don't Get Personal," with Hugh Herbert and Mischa Auer, is the second attraction.

West Point is celebrating its 140th anniversary this year.

CHAPTER XIII

Molly's jouncing gait had an almost hypnotic effect. It was hard to keep the eye from resting on some shining buckle or patent-leather trimming of the harness which rose and fell with her pace. Parris began to feel sleepy. After a while he began to see behind his half-closed lids something like a luminous thread stretching on and on ahead of them. It moved and whined faintly, and little figures ran and danced along the silvery transparent line. They were like the people he knew: Drake, himself, Louise Gordon, Cassandra, and over and over again tiny images of Renee, like a long screen of linked paper dolls. The figures fell about and postured and grimaced. They seemed not to like him. He wanted to call out to them, but they seemed very far away . . .

"Hey, sit up." Drake pushed him with his elbow. "Darned if you didn't go to sleep."

"I—I guess I did. I was even dreaming."

"I guess you and me had better stick together a little bit, Parris. Good gosh, you got to have somebody."

"We will; you bet."

"I want to get married and all that kind of thing some day, but I want to have all the good time I can first. But—well, you get kind of tired even having a good time."

"I expect so." Parris slipped back into an awkward feeling of childish inexperience again. He didn't know what to say exactly.

"Madison Greer and all that crowd, Jesse Alexander and Babe Fuller and the rest of 'em, get drunk a lot."

"Gee, you know I never did have a drink."

"Well, no use taking one either, kid. I expect to stay off drinking. Don't do you any good."

Parris nodded and tried to look judicious. "Um, yes, I expect so."

Drake chuckled. "You sounded just like a doctor then. You know, I expect you'll be a good doctor. Wouldn't surprise me at all."

"Well, darn your old skin. I expect to be."

Drake looked very serious. "You know, Parris, I wouldn't tell this to another soul on earth, 'cause I know everybody thinks I'm kind of wild and that I run around an awful lot, and that I ain't steady. But I'm going to surprise some people around this old town. I'm going to settle down hard when I do settle, and," he cut a quick sidewise look at Parris, "I'm going to make Louise proud of me."

"Is she in love with you, too? Now, I mean."

"I don't know. You can't tell anything about Louise."

"Well, of course she is. If she wasn't I expect you'd know that in a hurry."

Drake blinked at this unexpected perspicacity.

"Say, I guess that's right. I never thought about that. Gee—get up there, Molly. We don't want to spend our lives out here—no, sir, I never thought of that! How d'you happen to think about it?"

Parris waved his hand with a wise little gesture of deprecation. It implied a wide knowledge of the ways of women of which this was the merest sample.

"Parris, you know Preston Hill out there west of town?"

"Yes, of course. Why?"

"I want to buy it."

"Good gracious, Drake! What for? It's just a hill."

"Kings Row has got to grow, hasn't it? That's the best direction for it to go. Wouldn't that be a good place to build houses—you know, looking down across the creek there, and away out over the country?"

Parris was mightily impressed. "Why, that's wonderful! You'd make a lot of money, wouldn't you, and be rich?" His voice sounded a little wistful.

"Well, doctors make a pile of money. Wouldn't it be the darndest thing if we, you and me, could build houses for ourselves out there, right next to each other?"

"Listen, Drake—" Parris wriggled about and pulled one foot under him. He rested one arm along the back of the buggy seat and gesticulated in his odd foreign fashion with the other. The talk ran on into details. It seemed to them at that moment that life was clear and straight ahead of them and pleasant. They would do this, or that, thus or so. They wondered once or twice why older people always spoke of the difficulties of life. But, of course, in olden times everything was different. There really wasn't much use in paying attention to old people. They didn't understand that the world had changed now, and that things were easier and simpler.

All of the next day, and the next, Parris went about in a pleasantly unthinking haze of mind.

That one afternoon with Drake had relieved the whole feeling of loneliness which had weighed on him for weeks. But he did not want to see him—not just now. He could talk to Drake about his work, his hopes and plans, and about a good many of his everyday troubles. But at this moment he longed for someone who spoke the language of another side of his personality.

He recalled now what Dr. Tower had said last week about intuition. Place strong reliance on it—if you have a mind that works clearly and well on the—now what was it he said?—oh, yes—the normal planes of consciousness.

People thought Drake was wild. As happened so often, Parris' intuition said no to everything people thought. It had been that way with Tom Carr and crazy Lucy. He wondered if his intuition was reliable? Just because people were on different roads, couldn't they still understand each other?

After supper he remembered his notebooks. He had left them in Dr. Tower's study the afternoon he began his unorthodox holiday. He would have to walk into town for them.

* * *

It was quite dark when he reached Cherry street.

As he was about to step onto the low porch floor, he saw to his surprise that it was Cassandra and not Dr. Tower who sat in the deep chair under the green-shaded light.

"Hello, Cassandra. It's me—Parris. Didn't want to scare you."

"Why, hello." She arose and dropped her book face down in the chair. "Come in?" The words were distinctly question, and not invitation.

"Well, I—I just came after my notebooks. I left them here Tuesday."

Parris dropped his cap and coat on a chair. "I've been playing hookey."

"From father?"

"No. He put me up to it. Said I needed to rest."

"He's in St. Louis."

"Sure enough? When did he go?"

"He said tell you when you came back he'd be ready to see you on Wednesday."

"Wednesday. Oh. All right."

Parris felt himself grow a little ill at ease under her steady scrutiny. He really hadn't had a good look at her for a long time, and he had forgotten how lovely she was. He felt his heart beat a little faster and his breath come quick and short.

"Well, I guess I'll hurry on."

"Why?" Her long green eyes were steady now. They looked straight at him. He replaced the notebooks and looked at her in some surprise.

"Sit down. No, over here—on the couch. It's comfortable."

She sat down and pulled a pillow behind her head. She seemed perfectly at ease now.

"I—why, do you know, Cassie, I haven't seen you to talk to you, really, in a long, long time?"

She cut in suddenly. "It will probably be the only time."

He flushed. "Well—why, Cassie?"

"I can't see anyone. You don't have to ask questions to understand that, do you?"

"Well—my goodness, Cassie, I don't know. I guess maybe I want to ask you why, but if you don't want to tell me, or don't want to see me any more—"

"I said I couldn't see anyone." He faced her squarely. "Your father won't let you?"

"I told you you didn't have to ask questions."

"Oh. All right."

"Don't get your feelings hurt. Let's just talk."

"All right. What about?"

She laughed—simply and naturally. Some severe constraint disappeared with it. "Oh, anything. Tell me what you do all the time."

They talked a little feverishly, and a little jerkily. One moment she seemed to be as he always remembered her, the next she seemed strange and diffrent. She seemed then to look at him from a distance—exactly the way older people sometimes did.

A flick of lightning threw her face into high relief and intensified the lambent green of her eyes.

"My goodness, but you are pretty, Cassandra!"

She smiled a thin little smile. "Honest you are—you're prettier than you ever have been, and you always were the prettiest girl in this town."

She leaned forward and gave his wrist a quick squeeze, "Thank you, Mr. Mitchell." Her hand lingered for a moment on his, and he leaned over and kissed it.

"Silly!" But her voice trailed over the word ever so slightly.

Again a painful excitement clutched at his throat. Outside a few large drops of rain spattered against the porch floor.

"I—I guess I'd better go."

"Oh, I'm sorry." She stood up, so close that he felt a little wave of warmth from her. Without hesitation he put his arms around her and kissed her. He felt her lips part slowly under his own as she crushed herself against him.

There was another flash of lightning and an instant roll of heavy thunder. She twisted herself free and sat down abruptly. "I've wanted you to do that," she said huskily.

"And I've wanted to."

"It gets lonely—seeing no one."

"Oh, Cassie!" He wanted to ask her why her father permitted her no friends, why he couldn't be with her often. She shook her head, anticipating his question.

"No, Parris. But I want to be with you whenever I may. Just to talk. Will you stay and talk now?"

NERVOUS AS A CAT

Just how nervous is a cat and why? What causes nervousness in people? Authorities claim pressure on the intestinal nerves, due to constipation will do it. Disordered kidneys may help too. Harvard Seniors Are Stumped By Quiz In Slang

CAMBRIDGE. — (INS) — Erudite Harvard lads have been stumped, and slang tid-bits were the things that did it.

Most of the Harvard seniors described the Senior Album Poll quiz as the toughest they had ever taken. Some of the questions were: "Are you pin-sharp? Do you merkle? Or are you shill-shocked?"

Coles Phinizy, ex-president of the Harvard Lampoon was the only senior who knew the answers. "Pin sharp," he said means skillful at playing pin-ball machines; "merkle," jubilant to your own disaster and "shill-shocked," conscience-bound not to put slugs instead of nickles in a juke box.

He made up the questions.

FOR DEFENSE

PITTSFIELD, Mass. — (U.P.) — Shoemaker John Castello believes he was well within his rights in giving the aluminum-for-defense drive committee a pair of aluminum soled shoes.

Above Castello's bench is a sign reading "Not Responsible For Goods Left Over 30 Days."

When a committee member visited his shop, Castello handed out the boots left by a former member of the German army for repairs 22 years ago.

The original Koh-i-nor diamond weighed slightly more than 186 carats.

RANCHING OUTLOOK GOOD

BILLINGS, Mont. — (U.P.) — The present outlook for tourist travel and western vacationing is bright for 1942, according to L. H. Larom, Valley, Wyo., president of the Dude Ranchers' association. He pointed out that outdoor vacations would be demanded by those kept indoors by defense work.

Boxing Makes Comeback On Card Presented By Vets

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

A poll on the subject might be a bit embarrassing, but I imagine you will find very little weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth among the district high schools over the fact that the Sandusky junior high gym will not be available for the annual basketball tournament until after the war.

Beyond the annual kick over the tournament officiating, and the loud-speaker pleas to the customers to be ladies and gentlemen and good sports, (a highly insulting plea if you ask me) there are other angles about the Sandusky tournament which district schools haven't liked too well, and not the least of these is the financial cut.

Mansfield, winner of the Sandusky tourney, cut in for $192.34 for four trips to the jousting arena. Sandusky, bumped out in the first round by the Tygers, drew down $580.77 as the central, or host school, in the tournament, in addition to a liberal expense budget for handling the event The $580.77 goes into the Sandusky athletic fund with no strings attached.

This wouldn't be so bad if Sandusky furnished the crowd that drew the tournament's total gate of $1,935.89, but attendance records for the meet do not indicate this was the case.

Attendance for the first night of the tournament, only one in which Sandusky played, was 2,248, second night, 2,210, third, 2,236, and fourth, 1,225. If I read those figures right, schools still in the running after the first night supplied the crowds for the remaining sessions. If Sandusky has been supplying the crowds, the championship game would have drawn up in the two thousands along with the other sessions.

* * *

Rules of the tournament gave the host school the gravy, even though the games weren't played on the Sandusky high school floor, so the rest of the district schools can't register a legitimate kick.

But look what happened at the Findlay northwest regional tournament.

Findlay took only the bare expenses for operating the tourney. It took no central school cut.

And Mansfield and Toledo Central, meeting in the tourney finals, each drew $164 14 for two trips.

Crowds weren't as big at Findlay as at Sandusky because of lack of seating room. And only three games were played, and in only two nights. Yet Mansfield got almost as much there as it did at Sandusky. Visiting schools like that kind of treatment

* * *

And now let's call in Emily Post

For lessons on how to act the host.

Baldwin's 490 Leads Humphryes

Baldwin's 490 was good for top total in the Humphryes bowling league last night at Colony alleys and he also took high game of 189

HE GOT RAINCHECK TO BATTLE AXIS

FORT LEONARD WOOD, Mo —(AP)—Ray Haviland, member of the 1938 Missouri freshman grid team, may even yet get a crack at the Nazis. Haviland, now a private here, was aboard the Zam-Zam last April, on his way to drive an ambulance for the Free French, when the ship was torpedoed in the South Atlantic.

After being held by the Nazis for two months he was released.

Waddell Edged But Saves Show As Sub

Mike Sauers Stops Gene Williams With 6 Knockdowns In 3 Rounds

AMATEUR BOXING staged a successful comeback last night at the armory under the guidance of the American Legion's 40 & 8 as a crowd of 500 fans cheered their first show in a year. Considering the fact that it was Holy week, poorest time of the year for any kind of promotional venture, Legion officers were highly encouraged, and immediately announced plans for another show next month.

However, mitt fans will not have to wait that long for their favorite sport, as the annual J. A. C. tournament is booked next Thursday and Friday nights at the high school.

Little Leonard Waddell, making a last-minute substitution for Dick McConnell in the five-round semi-final bout, saved the show although he dropped the duke to Charles Gwynne, lightweight champion of the Columbus American Legion tournament.

Obviously out of training, and giving away poundage, Waddell tried to end it quick, and the first two round supplied the best fighting of the night. He slowed down from there on, but he was still good for occasional flurries that kept the fans on edge throughout the bout.

Waddell had Gwynne going at the end of the fourth round when he caught the Columbus boy flush on the button with a hard right as Gwynne bounced off the ropes. But in the fifth Waddell went down for a three count, as much from sheer exhaustion as from the right to the head that dropped him.

And on that knockdown went the decision. So close was the milling, one judge's tally sheet showed Waddell with 92 points, Gwynne with 91.

* * *

Howard Chambers defeated Eddie Williams of Columbus in the other five-rounder, by leading the fight through the first four heats. Williams went to work to cop the final stanza, but it wasn't enough to trade in for the advantage he had spotted the Rocky Fork camper.

Mike Sauers scored a technical knockout victory over Gene Williams of Columbus in the top, three-rounder, dropping Williams for the sixth and last time at 1 minute, 13 seconds of the third.

* * *

Williams went down for a nine count in the first round, hit the deck again for seven and one in the second, and for eight and six in the third before making his last trip to the canvas.

* * *

Chet Miller swarmed all over Todd Doughty of Columbus in their 116-pound scramble to take an easy decision. There were a few boos on the verdict by fans who liked the Columbus boy's snappy left hand, but Doughty spent too much time covering up to be considered a winner.

Harvey Berry punched out a decision over Dave Messmer of Columbus at 128 pounds, but Clarence Frizzell, lanky Columbus featherweight, solved Loudonville Bob Mizer's southpaw style and banged out a third-round verdict, smearing Mizer's face with blood in the last heat

Herb Schacherer, free swinging Mansfield walloper, decisioned Homer Bigens, Columbus 160-pounder, by belting Bigens over for an eight count at the final bell. Schacherer was so exhausted by the end of the second round he wanted to quit, and his fight-winning right smash to the side of Bigen's head in the third was a desperation effort.

* * *

Bill Mager, Columbus 148-pounder, scored a technical knockout over Bob Snyder, Loudonville, who was unable to continue after the first round because of a cut under his left eye.

Bob Johnson, Mansfield, chalked up an easy win over Bob Taylor, 152, Columbus, dropping Taylor four times for a total count of 21 in their three heats of milling. And George Maxwell, 134, Mansfield, decisioned Earl Barst, Columbus, in a rather slow curtain raiser.

John Eichinger as usual was the third man in the ring, and judges were Paul Eliot, George Allerding and Gyp Miller. Sam and Bob Fox handled the bell ringing chores.

Picks Dodgers To Win Again

Writer Likes Color of MacPhail Bank Roll.

By GAYLE TALBOT

TAMPA, Fla. —(AP)— If Larry MacPhail's bank roll holds out—and a fine, lusty bank roll it is—the Brooklyn Dodgers probably will fight off both the St. Louis Cardinals and the Cincinnati Reds and win themselves another National league pennant.

If it were not for the red-head's absolute determination to have a winner and his willingness to spend big money to get it, the temptation would be strong to pick one of the three top clubs out of a hat. They appear to be that evenly matched right now. But it is a pretty good baseball axiom to string along with the spender.

It should be a beauty of a race right down to the wire. The Dodgers and Cards waged a thriller last year, but this one might be even better because the Cincinnati club has recovered from its "world champions" daze and is going to be in there punching.

The Dodgers are a little sounder club all around than either the Reds or the Cards, and there is no guarantee that they will not increase their strength during the race.

The Cardinals have shown more zip and fire than any club training in Florida, but Cincinnati must be considered a very dangerous contender, despite the loss of Billy Werber's talents at third base and a comparative weakness at that point. If the veteran Gerald Walker, purchased last week from Cleveland, can hit .300 in a new league and bounce in around 100 runs the Reds will go a long way. They still have superlative pitching.

If anyone insists upon a complete final standing, here is one guess: (1) Brooklyn, (2) Cincinnati, (3) St. Louis, (4) Chicago, (5) Pittsburgh, (6) New York, (7) Boston, (8) Philadelphia.

WILLIAMS HURT

Ohio Freshman Breaks Records

Hawaiian Swimmer Stars In National AAU Meet.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—(AP)—Off in a flurry of records, the big question today, as the National A. A. U. swimming championships splashed toward a climax, was whether short, slim Kiyoshi Nakama of Hawaii could do it again.

The dark-haired Ohio State freshman stole the spotlight yesterday, when the three-day classic began, by paddling a spectacular 1500-meters in 19·35.4, leaving a trio of broken standards.

Nakama, a human fish, makes his next bid for fame this afternoon in the 220-yard free style est, a highlight of the five event program, and experts predict that if he does win it, it'll be in a foam of records.

Facing the Hawaiian in this feature spring will be Otto Jaretz, the great champions from the Pasadena A. C.; John Patten, Michigan's national collegiate winner and Captain Howie Johnson of Yale's mighty squad, prohibitive favorite to capture the team title for the first time.

Powerful Yale garnered four points and the Dallas A. C., two yesterday, but the Blue should pull faraway from the field of some 33 leading colleges and clubs by sunset.

AUSTIN, Tex. — (AP) — When Clyde Littlefield, University of Texas track coach, recently served as referee of the Butler Relays in Indianapolis, it was the first time in his 25 years as a coach he had ever seen an indoor meet.

License Tells Blunt's Age

But Townsend Explains Embarrassment Away.

COLUMBUS—Up at Ravenna, last Friday night, Ohio's high school athletic board adopted a ruling which read: "Hereafter, when any ineligible boy it permitted to participate, all season games in which he plays are to be forfeited regardless of the circumstances."

And that one word—"hereafter"—probably will ease a flock of possible headaches around Massillon. Last fall, due to several protests, Commissioner Townsend checked for two full weeks to ascertain the age of Fred (Pokey) Blunt, captain and backfield ace of the terrific Tigers. The commissioner came up with the information that "Pokey" was not o. age, as the critics declared, but that he had been born Sept. 19, 1922, making him only 19 during the grid campaign.

However, Blunt applied for a marriage license not so long ago—and the Stark county records show he listed his age as 21—which would have put him past the 20-year mark, and ineligible, last fall.

Mr. Townsend rushed to Blunt's defense, however, with: "He probably thought he'd have trouble getting a license if he was under 21, so maybe he hunched his age a year or so. He's only 19."

Anyway, due to the "hereafter" erasing all retroactive possibilities, Massillon will keep its record of nine wins and a tie, and its claim to a seventh straight grid title.

CAPITALS WIN

HERSHEY, Pa.—(AP)—The Indianapolis Caps moved closer to the American Hockey league championship last night by roaring from behind in the third period to defeat the Hershey Bears 2 to 1. Thus the Caps took over the lead in the best-of-five series by the same tally, two games to one.

Ned Day Braves Jinx Lanes In 13th Crack at ABC Crown

By GEORGE J. KIENZLE

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ned Day—idol of the run-of-garden keglers—today drew jinxed alleys for his 13th crack at the American Bowling Congress prizes.

Many bowlers sleep only in seventh-floor hotel rooms and hope for assignment to "hot" alleys where big scores have been made.

But Day, national match game champion since 1938, scoffs at such superstitions and performs best on drives where scores were low—until he takes over.

Not one of the leaders in the four tournament events came from alleys 9 and 10, where the West Allis, Wis., bowler makes his first bid for 1942 ABC honors. Nine has a particularly bad record.

It was there that Joe Bodis of Cleveland, who held a record 10-year average of 205, was rolling when he injured his back and hit a slump that ruined his chances for the all-events leadership.

Bodis, after racking up a sparkling 717 the night before, started his singles with 127, followed with 142, then walked off the alleys without finishing.

Day hit the big time 12 years ago and has stayed at the top with a lifetime ABC average of 202. Others have topped that mark, but Day's pace got dizzier as he turned in a 204 average for the past ten years, then upped it to 209 for the last five.

Day took the national match game title four years ago after Hank Marion of Santa Monica, Calif., retired as champion, and since then the biggest tournament crowds have watched him unlimber his Sunday hook.

Day sees action tomorrow night with the Pabst Blue Ribbon team of Milwaukee and will fire for singles and doubles records Sunday.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

SHORT SHORT STORY.

They tell one about the time Joe Louis played a round of golf with crooner Bing Crosby. . . . For 16 holes Joe didn't say a word. On the 17th he was short on a six-foot putt. . . . As he handed his club back to his caddy, Louis remarked: "I'm a sissy."

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

John Mooney, Salt Lake Telegram: "From the talk going around, you'd think Buck Newsom was the first boondoggler ever sent to Washington as a senator."

FUTURE BOOK.

A big San Diego (Calif.) shipyard had formed a "naval construction athletic league" and plans to stage some classy fight shows with talent drawn from the 35 boxers on the payroll. A base baseball league also is in prospect. . . . Ted Williams tells a Boston scribe: "No matter what happens during the coming season, I'm going to enlist when it's over." . . . And, speaking of future books, whatever became of the ones that used to operate on the Kentucky Derby?

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need

BATAN TROOPS WAITING ATTACK

Mop Up Japanese Who Broke Through Main Defense Lines Yesterday.

explosive power of a stick of dynamite.

Officers familiar with Japanese tactics said the encircled troops doubtless would dig in during the night in individual foxholes. Individual Japanese may be able to hold on in their foxholes, which they call go's, for several days. In a sack on his back each man carries one day's emergency rations and five days' supply of rice.

It was considered unlikely that the Japanese would try to aid their encircled units on Batan by landing parachute troops. Reports on the first large-scale Japanese parachute operation, in the Dutch East Indies, show it was far from successful.

In this attack, Feb. 14, the Japanese dropped 700 men from 100 planes around Palembang, the oil-refining center in south Sumatra. Armed with light mortars and machine-guns, the parachutists landed in three groups. Their mission was to capture the flying field and oil refineries. The mission failed.

The war department late yesterday gave this account of the newest fighting on Batan.:

Before daylight Thursday the Japanese made a heavy assault on the center of the U. S. line. They advanced beyond outposts from which U. S. troops had been withdrawn, but came under heavy American artillery fire. American troops then counterattacked and recaptured the outposts.

At about 10 a. m. Thursday Japanese assault troops, supported by a heavy concentration of artillery fire, advanced against the left center of the line. In heavy fighting they penetrated the American main line. U. S. troops counterattacked fiercely, closed the line and pocketed a number of Japanese units.

Mopping up operations were believed to be still in progress today. American troops had restored the main line and inflicted heavy casualties on the Japanese, but suffered only slight casualties themselves.

5 DIE AS ARMY BOMBER FALLS

150 Acres Burned Over After Explosion; 3 More Fliers Killed in Take-off.

veloped motor trouble and plunged into the woodlands two miles off Victory highway.

The plunge was accompanied by a deafening explosion, apparently, officials said, caused by the explosion of bombs in a rack. A farmer heard the blast and called state police.

To reach the scene it was necessary to travel more than a mile on an unused road and then go half a mile along a footpath.

Three Fliers Killed In Take-off Attempt

COLUMBIA, S. C.—(INS)—Three army fliers were killed today when their plane crashed as they attempted a take-off from the Lexington air base, near Columbia.

Cause of the accident was not immediately announced, but the plane was said to have burst into flames, trapping the three airmen inside.

The fliers were identified by Lexington field officers as Second Lieut. G. F. Hayman, jr., said to have been piloting the plane at the time of the crash; First Lieut. A. C. Darden, and Sgt. C. D. Fisher.

FIGHT LOOMS

Scrap Seen on Plan to Hire More Senate Clerks.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—A sharp senate fight was indicated today on an appropriations committee proposal to provide senators with additional secretarial help at a cost to the federal government of $196,800 annually.

The committee on a divided vote moved to allow each senator an additional clerk, with members from heavily populated states to receive up to three extra aids.

The action would place an additional 112 clerks on the federal payroll, which now carries more than a $1,000,000 for senatorial office help. It was described by members as a move necessitated by "heavy war time mail."
